Satellite Equivalence Orbits Ernst Friedrich Maria Jochim, 2024-12-04 This book presents the essential characteristics of the different satellite motions Satellite motions can be classified as anomalistic draconitic tropical Hansen Kepler meridional Sun synodical Moon synodical motion depending on the relevant reference point When two of these types of motions in some cases even more than two are coupled satellite orbits are obtained which are called equivalence orbits in this book They share the special properties of the different coupled motions and are therefore of particular interest in the selection of special satellite orbits In the book the author calculates mean equivalence orbits with secular perturbation formulas as well as true equivalence orbits considering a complete orbit model including periodic motion effects Some of the equivalence orbits can be determined unambiguously and with extremely high accuracy they are stable in the long term Others can only be found with low accuracy and reduced stability The author investigates all possible combinations and the associated general equations of condition are derived in each case Some well known families of satellite orbits such as the Sun synchronous orbits can be interpreted as mean equivalence orbits The study of their stability is of great interest in orbit mechanics Special applications and numerous numerical examples graphical representations of all possible ranges of the Kepler elements and detailed studies of the stability of particularly important equivalence orbits are carried out using the Brouwer orbit model as well as the modification by Eckstein This lays the foundation for possible refinements using arbitrary extended orbital models and for possibly required orbital corrections Numerous problems are to deepen the treated topics and or to stimulate for further investigations The book will be of interest to Astrodynamics and Aerospace Engineers as well as graduate students studying satellite orbits Non-Linear Perspectives on Teacher Development Kathryn J. Strom, Tammy Mills, Linda Abrams, 2023-03-21 Despite the multifaceted complexity of teaching dominant perspectives conceptualize teacher development in linear dualistic transactional human centric ways The authors in this book offer non linear alternatives by drawing on a continuum of complex perspectives including CHAT complexity theory actor network theory indigenous studies rhizomatics and posthuman neomaterialisms The chapters included here illuminate how different ways of thinking can help us better examine how teachers learn relationally with human material and discursive elements and offer ways to understand the entangled nature of the relationship between that learning and what emerges in classroom instructional practice They also present situated illustrations of what those entanglements or assemblages look like in the preservice induction and inservice phases from early childhood to secondary settings and across multiple continents Authors provide evidence that research on teacher development should focus on process as much if not more than product and show that complexity perspectives can support forward thinking assets based pedagogies Methodologically the chapters encourage conceptual creativity and expansion and support an argument for blurring theory method and normalising methodological hybridity Ultimately this book provides conceptual theoretical and methodological tools to understand current educational conditions in late capitalism and imagine otherwise It was originally published as a special issue of the journal Professional Development in Education
