located near the bottom of the chain case cover.
To determine correct oil level in the transmission and chain case compartments proceed as follows:

- A. Stand motorcycle straight up. Motorcycle must remain in this position during entire procedure.
- B. Remove transmission oil filler plug (15) and oil level plug (7).
NOTE: If the oil is to be changed, remove oil drain plug. Reinsert after oil has drained and tighten oil drain plug before proceeding with next step.
- C. Add oil until it begins to overflow through oil level hole. Leave excess oil flow from oil level hole until it ceases to run. This is correct oil level.
- D. Reinsert and tighten oil level plug and oil filler plug.

Drain transmission and refill to correct level with fresh, clean oil once each year or every 5000 miles, whichever comes first. If transmission should become submerged in water, drain it immediately and refill with clean oil to the correct level.

4. REAR CHAIN

At regular service intervals (1000 miles) make a close inspection of rear chain. If it does not appear to be getting sufficient lubrication, or if there is evidence of an over-supply of oil, readjustment should be made with "rear chain oiler adjusting screw". Readjust the rear chain oiler as follows: rear chain oiler and the adjusting screw are located at the bottom end of the oil return line; the adjusting screw is locked in position with a lock nut; to loosen the lock nut and turn screw outward for more oil, and inward for less oil; turn screw only a fraction of a turn at a time; lock adjusting screw in place with lock nut.

The quantity of oil needed to lubricate the rear chain is very small. The size of the opening (orifice) through which oil bleeds to the chain is regulated by the adjusting screw. Sediment in and gummy matter, accumulating in the oil supply, deposit in and around this orifice and gradually decrease the oil supply to the chain. A chain that has been lubricated perfectly the first 2000 miles may run short of oil the second 2000 miles. For this reason, even though inspection indicates the chain is amply lubricated, it is advisable to blow away accumulated sediment and restore the orifice to its original size at intervals of approximately 2000 miles.
