Ancient Literacies William A Johnson, Holt N Parker, 2009-02-05 Classicists have been slow to take advantage of the important advances in the way that literacy is viewed in other disciplines including in particular cognitive psychology socio linguistics and socio anthropology On the other hand historians of literacy continue to rely on outdated work by classicists mostly from the 1960s and 1970s and have little access to the current reexamination of the ancient evidence This timely volume attempts to formulate new interesting ways of talking about the entire concept of literacy in the ancient world literacy not in the sense of whether 10% or 30% of people in the ancient world could read or write but in the sense of text oriented events embedded in a particular socio cultural context The volume is intended as a forum in which selected leading scholars rethink from the ground up how students of classical antiquity might best approach the question of literacy in the past and how that investigation might materially intersect with changes in the way that literacy is now viewed in other disciplines The result will give readers new ways of thinking about specific elements of literacy in antiquity such as the nature of personal libraries or what it means to be a bookseller in antiquity new constructionist questions such as what constitutes reading communities and how they fashion themselves new takes on the public sphere such as how literacy intersects with commercialism or with the use of public spaces or with the construction of civic identity new essentialist questions such as what book and reading signify in antiquity why literate cultures develop or why literate cultures matter The book derives from a conference a Semple Symposium held in Cincinnati in April 2006 and includes new work from the most outstanding scholars of literacy in antiquity e.g. Simon Goldhill Joseph Farrell Peter White and Rosalind Thomas

Reading Old Books Peter Mack,2021-11-23 A wide ranging exploration of the creative power of literary tradition from Chaucer to the present In literary and cultural studies tradition is a word everyone uses but few address critically In Reading Old Books Peter Mack offers a wide ranging exploration of the creative power of literary tradition from the middle ages to the twenty first century revealing in new ways how it helps writers and readers make new works and meanings Reading Old Books argues that the best way to understand tradition is by examining the moments when a writer takes up an old text and writes something new out of a dialogue with that text and the promptings of the present situation The book examines Petrarch as a user instigator and victim of tradition It shows how Chaucer became the first great English writer by translating and adapting a minor poem by Boccaccio It investigates how

Ariosto Tasso and Spenser made new epic meanings by playing with assumptions episodes and phrases translated from their predecessors It analyzes how the Victorian novelist Elizabeth Gaskell drew on tradition to address the new problem of urban deprivation in Mary Barton And finally it looks at how the Kenyan writer Ng g wa Thiong o in his 2004 novel Wizard of the Crow reflects on biblical English literary and African traditions Drawing on key theorists critics historians and sociologists and stressing the international character of literary tradition Reading Old Books illuminates the not entirely free choices readers and writers make to create meaning in collaboration and competition with their models

Semiotics of Re-reading Anthony Julian Tamburri, 2003 This study examines the necessity of reading retrospectively In this manner the reader who comes along after the composition of an author's opus may better understand the author's earlier works after reading a later one In contrast to a reader contemporary to the text who does not have the opportunity of hind sight this special reader recto lector draws on information gathered from a later text in order to understand a previously composed text For example the relationship between Aldo Palazzeschi's riflessi 1908 and his later manifestoes 1914 1915 amply demonstrates the value and necessity of such a reading process this is especially true with regard to non canonical writers as is Palazzeschi The retro lector of riflessi therefore comes away with an interpretation both different and more complete than that which the contemporary reader would acquire after a strict canonical reading Along with works by Palazzeschi Semiotics of Re-reading also examines poetry by Guido Gozzano and short fiction by Italo Calvino
