A Season to Remember Grant Kerr, 2011 Okay they didn't quite win the Stanley Cup but the Vancouver Canucks still made their fortieth season in the NHL one to remember for years to come After spending much of those four decades racking up a record of futility matched by few other sports franchises the Canucks came closer to hockey supremacy than any Canadian team in eighteen years and their regular season was still the best in the NHL and the best ever in franchise history And let's not forget the Sedin twins amazing feat of becoming the first brothers to win back to back scoring titles in NHL history That still leaves a lot for Canucks fans to celebrate once the disappointment of losing Game Seven to the Boston Bruins wears off Part of the problem with the 2010-11 Canucks was that they were just so darn good Unlike the two previous Canucks teams that battled for the Stanley Cup in 1982 and 1994 this team was not an underdog punching above its weight This team had been fingered to win it all by experts before the season started and seemed to justify its heady buildup by winning the Presidents Trophy as the NHL's best team during the regular season It was expected to win the cup and when it didn't the disappointment was sharper than on previous trips to the final But once the ice fog clears the fortieth season will be recognized for the wonderful thing it was How did the team's new management turn the NHL's long time doormat into a champion How good was that regular season really Are the Sedins for real or are they just fair weather skaters who will always disappear when the going gets tough And what about Roberto Luongo saviour or albatross The team came so close what bad breaks might have been avoided what adjustments could have been made what decisions like playing backup goalie Cory Schneider in the final series might have made the difference These are the kinds of questions that are best answered by a real expert and Grant Kerr is a very rare kind of hockey expert both a professional coach and a veteran hockey writer His blow by blow insights into the Canucks greatest season will entertain and satisfy every hockey fan and make A Season to Remember a must have for every hockey library

Vancouver Canucks Justin Beddall, 2004 Canucks left winger Geoff Courtnall knew the scouting report on Calgary Flames goaltender Mike Vernon High glove side The Canucks filed into the visitors dressing room at the Calgary Saddledome after the third period of game five of the 1994 Stanley Cup playoffs The players knew if they didn't score a goal in overtime their season was finished Courtnall took a few seconds to visualize a goal his former teammate Wayne Gretzky had scored against Vernon during the 1988 Stanley Cup playoffs Shorthanded Gretzky had skated down the left wing With Vernon high in the crease to challenge him he had blasted a slapshot high over the goaltender's glove hand shoulder During the intermission Courtnall walked out of the dressing room into the corridor where he could light a propane torch to doctor his stick He put a massive maybe even illegal curve on his Easton If he could get a shot during the overtime period he was going to shoot high on Vernon Eight minutes into the first overtime period Courtnall got the opportunity he had prepared his stick for As he hopped over the boards to replace Greg Adams on a line change Courtnall skated opportunistically down the left wing A Canucks defenceman broke up a play at the Canucks blueline The puck bounced fortuitously between a Calgary defenceman s legs and onto the streaking Courtnall s stick Courtnall cruised down towards the Calgary net and wired a slapshot from the top of the face off circle
