Pérez-López, 2010-06-28 While Fidel Castro maintained his longtime grip on Cuba revolutionary scholars and policy analysts turned their attention from how Castro succeeded and failed to how Castro himself would be succeeded by a new government Among the many questions to be answered was how the new government would deal with the corruption that has become endemic in Cuba Even though combating corruption cannot be the central aim of post Castro policy Sergio D az Briquets and Jorge P rez L pez suggest that without a strong plan to thwart it corruption will undermine the new economy erode support for the new government and encourage organized crime In short unless measures are taken to stem corruption the new Cuba could be as messy as the old Cuba Fidel Castro did not bring corruption to Cuba he merely institutionalized it Official corruption has crippled Cuba since the colonial period but Castro s state run monopolies cronyism and lack of accountability have made Cuba one of the world s most corrupt states The former communist countries in Eastern Europe were also extremely corrupt and analyses of their transitional periods suggest that those who have taken measures to control corruption have had more successful transitions regardless of whether the leadership tilted toward socialism or democracy To that end D az Briquets and P rez L pez both Cuban Americans do not advocate any particular system for Cuba s next government but instead prescribe uniquely Cuban policies to minimize corruption whatever direction the country takes after Castro As their work makes clear averting corruption may be the most critical obstacle in creating a healthy new Cuba Financial Sustainability and Intergenerational Equity in Local Governments Rodríguez Bolívar, Manuel Pedro, López Subires, María Deseada, 2018-03-16 Due to the mortgage crisis of 2008 laws aimed at achieving budgetary and financial stability were enacted The concept of nancial sustainability has been linked to the need of rendering public services without

Sustainable Urban Agriculture in Cuba Sinan Koont,2016-12-07 Pushed by necessity but enabled by its existing social and educational policies Cuba in the 1990s launched the most extensive program of urban sustainable agriculture in the world This study is to date the only book length investigation in either English or Spanish of this important national experiment in transforming the environmental economic and social nature of today's dominant system of producing food Al Campbell University of Utah As large scale industrial agriculture comes under increasing scrutiny because of its petroleum and petrochemical based input costs and environmentally objectionable consequences increasing attention has been focused on sustainable local and agro ecological techniques in food production Cuba was forced by historical circumstances to be one of the pioneers in the massive application of these techniques After the demise of the Soviet Union in the early 1990s Cuba was left without access to external support needed to carry on with industrial agriculture The economic crisis led the country to reconsider their former models of resource management Cuba retooled its agricultural programs to focus on urban agriculture sustainable ecologically sound farming close to densely populated areas Food now takes far less time to get to the people who are now better nourished because they have easier access to whole foods Moreover urban farming has become a source of national pride Cuba has one of the best urban agriculture programs in the world with a thousand fold increase in urban agricultural output since 1994 Sinan Koont has spent the last several years researching urban agriculture in Cuba including field work at many sustainable farms on the island He tells the story of why and how Cuba was able to turn to urban food production on a large scale with minimal use of chemicals petroleum and machinery and of the successes it achieved along with the continuing difficulties it still faces in reducing its need for food imports Sinan Koont is associate professor of economics at Dickinson College A volume in the series Contemporary Cuba edited by John M Kirk Books in Print, 1994
