You are employed as a junior accountant at ClickAndPay Limited ("CAP"). CAP is a leading e-commerce retailer in South Africa. Customers can order goods online through CAP's website or on the mobile application after which it is delivered directly to the doorstep of the customer at a click of a button. CAP has a wide variety of products to choose from with over 20 different departments including electronics, media, gaming, fashion and books to name a few. Sales are made for cash or on credit. Credit is only granted to customers after their credit application has been successful.

Amongst your duties include assisting in the creditors and debtors department depending on the work allocation. CAP has a 30 September 2020 financial year end and accounts for inventory on the perpetual system.

CAP received a statement from one of its electronics suppliers, Pear Limited ("Pear"), dated as 30 September 2020. The statement indicated a debit balance of R215 450. As per CAP's accounting records an amount of R80 150 is payable to Pear. You noticed the following discrepancies when you compared the statement to the accounting records of CAP:

This was captured at the normal purchase prices in CAP's accounting records. These goods were still on hand on 30 September 2020.
3. Credit note 503 (dated as 18 September 2020) of R12 500 was debited on the statement.
