Joshi, 2015-11-16 This is a critical study of many of the leading writers of horror and supernatural fiction since World War II The primary purpose is to establish a canon of weird literature and to distinguish the genuinely meritorious writers of the past fifty years from those who have obtained merely transient popular renown Accordingly the author regards the complex subtle work of Shirley Jackson Ramsey Campbell Robert Aickman T E D Klein and Thomas Ligotti as considerably superior to the best sellers of Stephen King Clive Barker Peter Straub and Anne Rice Other writers such as William Peter Blatty Thomas Tryon Robert Bloch and Thomas Harris are also discussed Taken as a whole the volume represents a pioneering attempt to chart the development of weird fiction over the past half century

Weaveworld Clive Barker, Here is storytelling on a grand scale the stuff of which a classic is made Weaveworld begins with a rug a wondrous magnificent rug into which a world has been woven It is the world of the Seerkind a people more ancient than man who possesses raptures the power to make magic In the last century they were hunted down by an unspeakable horror known as the Scourge and threatened with annihilation they worked their strongest raptures to weave themselves and their culture into a rug for safekeeping Since then the rug has been guarded by human caretakers The last of the caretakers has just died Vying for possession of the rug is a spectrum of unforgettable characters Suzanna granddaughter of the last caretaker who feels the pull of the Weaveworld long before she knows the extent of her own powers Calhoun Mooney a pigeon raising clerk who finds the world he s always dreamed of in a fleeting glimpse of the rug Immacolata an exiled Seerkind witch intent on destroying her race even if it means calling back the Scourge and her sidekick Shadwell the Salesman who will sell the Weaveworld to the highest bidder In the course of the novel the rug is unwoven and we travel deep into the glorious raptures of the Weaveworld before we witness the final cataclysmic struggle for its possession Barker takes us to places where we have seldom been in fiction places terrifying and miraculous humorous and profound With keen psychological insight and prodigious invention his trademark graphic vision balanced by a spirit of transcendent promise Barker explores the darkness and the light the magical and the monstrous and celebrates the triumph of the imagination
