The Higher Education Institutions Handbook, 2012 Utilising Positive Psychology for the Transition into University Life Peter JO Aloka, 2024-10-16 This book uses a positive psychology approach to assist freshmen first year students in the transition to University life. New University students are faced with varied adjustment challenges on the transition from secondary school to higher education because there are vast differences between secondary schooling and university environment including learning and teaching styles, expectation to manage themselves. Positive psychology involves reflecting on one's weaknesses and strengths and how to capitalize on the latter and so using case studies from South African universities, this book details how knowledge of one's strengths and weaknesses can help new University students engage in the learning process. As such, this pioneering work will be of interest to students, educators, and therapy practitioners alike.

The Status of Student Involvement in University Governance in Kenya Mulinge, Munyae M., Arasa, Josephine N., 2017-05-05 This book examines the concept of the democratization of governance in universities in Kenya with particular emphasis on students' involvement in governance processes and decision making. Data were collected from members of the student community utilizing a structured self-administered questionnaire and from purposively selected key informants and focus group discussants drawn from Kenyatta University representing the public sector and the United States International University representing the private sector. The guiding argument for the study was that shared governance, one of the principles of good governance, is critical in enabling the universities to deliver their visions and the missions effectively. The results revealed that while in principle Kenyan universities have embraced democratic governance in which all stakeholders including students have a role to play, in practice they continue to violate the core principles of good governance, particularly shared governance. Specifically, students who are major stakeholders in university education are largely excluded from significant structures of governance, thereby limiting their influence and participation. Although their representation is mainly provided via student self-governance organs, unions, associations, and/or councils, their effectiveness is undermined considerably by the lack of trust and confidence of the student body and the unending manipulation by top university administrators and external political actors. Student active involvement in decision making is mainly confined to lower levels such as the school faculty and departmental programme. The authors call for a paradigm shift in the involvement of students in the governance of universities in ways that discourage the current culture of tokenism and political correctness that characterizes public and private universities in Kenya.
