

Introducing Earth

Earth is an enormous system. Studying such a large system can be difficult. Through observations, scientists have come up with techniques to make the study of Earth easier. A couple of techniques that you will learn about in this chapter are relative dating and tree-ring dating. Scientists also use maps to study Earth. Look at a map of your town. What conclusions can you draw about Earth's surface and geology from that map?

Key Questions

1. How is the Grand Canyon like a history book?
2. How old is Earth?
3. What is a topographic map?

3.1 Observing Earth

You have learned about systems and how they are used in experiments. In this book you will learn about Earth, a huge system! Earth science is a large field of science that includes geology, the study of rocks and rock formations (Figure 3.1). This section is about geology and the scientific methods used to study it.

The beginnings of geology

Shark's teeth In 1666, Nicolas Steno, a Danish anatomist, studied a shark's head and noticed that the shark's teeth resembled mysterious stones called "tonguestones" that were found inside of local rocks. At that time, people believed that tonguestones had either fallen from the moon, or that they grew inside the rocks. Steno theorized that tonguestones looked like shark's teeth because they actually were shark's teeth that had been buried and became fossils!

How did teeth get inside a rock? Steno realized that when an animal dies it is eventually covered by layers of soil. The animal's soft parts decay quickly, but bones and teeth do not. Over a long period of time, the soil around the dead animal becomes rock with the bones and teeth inside.
