Reading Comprehension Passage

Crocodiles

Crocodiles are fascinating creatures that live in rivers, lakes, and swamps. They are reptiles, which means they have scaly skin and lay eggs. Crocodiles are known for their long snouts and sharp teeth. They can grow to be very big, with some crocodiles reaching lengths of up to 30 feet!

Crocodiles are excellent swimmers. Their strong tails help them move swiftly through the water. They also have webbed feet, which makes it easier for them to paddle and steer. When they swim, their bodies are partially submerged, with only their eyes, ears, and nostrils above the water. This allows them to sneak up on their prey without being noticed.

Crocodiles are carnivores, which means they eat meat. They are skilled hunters and can eat a variety of animals, such as fish, birds, and even other reptiles. They have a special way of catching their prey. Crocodiles often lie in wait, partially submerged in the water, until an unsuspecting animal comes near. Then, with a quick burst of speed, they lunge forward, grab their prey with their powerful jaws, and drag it into the water. Crocodiles have incredibly strong jaws, and once they bite down, it's almost impossible for their prey to escape.

Crocodiles are also known for their ability to stay underwater for long periods of time. They have special adaptations that allow them to hold their breath. When they dive, they can close their nostrils and ear flaps to keep water out. They can also slow down their heart rate, which helps them conserve oxygen. This allows them to stay underwater for up to an hour without coming up for air.

In conclusion, crocodiles are fascinating reptiles that are well-adapted to their aquatic habitats. They are skilled swimmers, powerful hunters, and can hold their breath for a long time. However, it's important to remember that crocodiles are wild animals and should be admired from a safe distance.
