analyse the relationship between the academy and media professionals They outline and discuss often competing discourses about how to do history and the underlying assumptions about who watches history programmes History on Television considers recent changes in the media landscape which have affected to a great degree how history in general and whose history in particular appears onscreen Through a number of case studies using material from interviews by the authors with academic and media professionals the role of the professional historian and that of media professionals commissioning editors and producer directors as mediators of historical material and interpretations is analysed and the ways in which the logics of television shape historical output are outlined and discussed Building on their analysis Ann Gray and Erin Bell ask if history on television fulfils its potential to be a form of public history through offering as it does a range of interpretations of the past to and originating from or including those not based in the academy Through consideration of the representation or absence of the diversity of British identity gender ethnicity and race social status and regional identities the authors substantially extend the scope of existing scholarship into history on television History on Television will be essential reading for all those interested in the complex processes involved in the representation of history on television Fictions of Art History Mark Ledbury, 2013-10-28 DIV Fictions of Art History the most recent addition to the Clark Studies in the Visual Arts series addresses art history s complex relationships with fiction poetry and creative writing Inspired by a 2010 conference the volume examines art historians viewing practices and modes of writing How the contributors ask are we to unravel the supposed facts of history from the fictions constructed in works of art How do art historians employ or resist devices of fiction and what are the effects of those choices on the reader In styles by turns witty elliptical and plain speaking the essays in Fictions of Art History are fascinating and provocative critical interventions in art history div The Furies of Marjorie Bowen John C. Tibbetts, 2019-11-25 This first book length critical examination of the life and work of Marjorie Bowen 1885 1952 reveals a major English writer whose prodigious output included stories of history romance and the supernatural As Pulitzer Prize winning critic Michael Dirda writes in his Foreword Bowen may be the finest British woman writer of the uncanny of the last century a view that echoes the high regard of cultural historian Edward Wagenknecht who called her a literary phenomenon one whose best work places her alongside such contemporaries as Edith Wharton and Daphne du Maurier Publicly acclaimed known only by a series of pseudonyms including Marjorie Bowen but privately inscrutable she was and is a mysterious and complex character Drawing for the first time upon archival resources and the cooperation of the Bowen Estate this book reveals a woman who saw herself as a rationalist and serious historian but also as a mystic and dark enchantress of dread Above all through a lifetime of domestic storms and creative ecstasy Bowen worked tirelessly as both a professional writer and a consummate artist always seeking as she once confessed to find beauty in dark places
