Lab – Snell's Law and total internal reflection

Name _____ Score _____

Introduction:

When light travels between two different medium, the velocity and wavelength changes. The result is the "bending" of the light. The "bending" of light is referred to as refraction. The "bending" follows a convenient mathematical relationship called Snell's law, named after Dutch astronomer Willebrord Snellius (1580-1626). The purpose of this lab is to determine the relationship between the incident angle of a light beam and the refracted angle of the light beam as the beam passes from one medium to another. In addition, students will demonstrate the application of Snell's Law. As consequence, students will be able to determine the critical angle for a light beam that travels from a more dense medium to a less dense medium.

Part I: Discovering Snell's Law with "Bending Light 1.1.1"

- (1) Start the PHET simulation entitled "Bending Light". The simulation is available at the following website:
<https://phet.colorado.edu/>
- (2) Click on the "More Tools" box
- (3) Turn on the laser and drag the circular protractor such that the protractor is centered along the normal line and the boundary between the two mediums. Also, drag the speed indicator tool out from the tools located at the lower left of the simulation. The laser can be dragged to change the incident angle. Play with the simulation and try changing some of the different parameters. Make sure to select "Ray" and check the "Angles" box.

The top area, the air, is considered medium 1.
Index of refraction =  $n_1$  = air (default setting)
 $\theta_1$  = incident angle measured from the normal (dashed line)
 $\theta_2$  = refracted angle measured from the normal

The bottom, or dark region, is considered medium 2 with an index of refraction  $n_2$ .
The initial setting is glass at 1.5.

- (4) The index of refraction, given by the letter  $n$ , is defined as the ratio of the speed of light in a vacuum to the speed of light in a medium:  $n = \frac{c}{v}$ , where  $c = 3.0 \times 10^8 \text{ m/s}$ . As light travels into different substances, the velocity of light is lower. For our purposes the speed of light in a vacuum will be the same as that of air. Use the speed tool to measure the velocity of light in the glass. Write the velocity in terms of  $c$ .
- (5) Use the definition for the index of refraction to verify that the index of refraction for glass is 1.5. Show all your work in the box below.
