Practical Theology and the Interpretation of Crossing Boundaries Bert Roebben, 2003 In October 2002 the Tilburg Professor of Practical Theology Tjeu van Knippenberg retired In order to honour him as a bright scholar in the field of fundamental practical theology and pastoral care 23 of his colleagues at Tilburg University and elsewhere Nijmegen and Leuven contributed to this festschrift Their attention is focused on the concept of boundaries in practical theology between context and Christian tradition church and society personal identity and Christian narrative individual and community Different research projects out of the Tilburg tradition of practical theology are presented from an empirical hermeneutical perspective

Science Cultivating Practice Harro Maat, 2001-12-31 Science Cultivating Practice is an institutional history of agricultural science in the Netherlands and its overseas territories The focus of this study is the variety of views about a proper relationship between science and agricultural practice Such views and plans materialised in the overall organisation of research and education Moreover the book provides case studies of genetics and plant breeding in the Netherlands colonial rice breeding and agricultural statistics Ideas affected the organisation as much as the other way round The net result was an institutional development in which the values of academic science were rated higher than the values of practice This book is a distinctive piece of work as it treats the dynamics of science in a European as well as in a colonial context These different ecological and social environments lead to other forms of knowledge and experimentation as well as other ways of organising science Crossing the threshold Andreas C. Göransson, 2021-02-18 The theory of evolution is considered the unifying theory of biology An accurate understanding of evolution is vital both for the understanding of diverse topics in biology but also for societal issues such as antibiotic resistance or biodiversity In contrast decades of research in science education have revealed that students have difficulties to accurately understand evolutionary processes such as mutation and natural selection The majority of this research relies on a conceptual framework of so called key concepts variation selection inheritance derived from scholarly descriptions of natural selection Recent research suggests that non domain specific concepts such as randomness probability spatial and temporal scales so called threshold concepts are important for evolution understanding in addition to the key concepts Thus many important elements of evolutionary theory are counter intuitive or lie outside direct perception Hence representations such as visualizations models and simulations are considered to be important for teaching and learning evolution. While the importance of visualizations is generally acknowledged for science education, less is known about how visual design can facilitate students' understanding of threshold concepts such as random mutations or spatial scales. This thesis uses the Model of Educational Reconstruction (MER) as the guiding framework for exploring the significance of threshold concepts by analysing the conceptual content of students' explanations and extant visualizations of natural selection. MER combines scientific content with teaching and learning perspectives for the analysis and design of learning environments. Content analysis of visualizations available online showed that most fail to fully represent the basic principles of natural selection: variation, selection, and inheritance. Moreover, the representational potential of visualizations was seldom used to represent threshold concepts such as randomness in origin of variation. Visualizations were also biased to animals as the context of evolution. Similarly, upper secondary and tertiary students' explanations of natural selection were seldom complete in terms of the basic principles and threshold concepts such as randomness were often lacking. Especially significant was the almost complete lack of randomness in upper secondary students' explanations. In addition, threshold concepts were context sensitive across the items used: bacteria, cheetah, and salamander. For example, spatial scale and randomness was significantly more common in responses to the bacteria item compared to the cheetah and salamander items. Considering the results from these studies, three interactive visualizations were developed: evolution of antibiotic resistance and fur colouration in mice. The visualization design was conducted iteratively following a Design Based Research approach and evaluated in classroom settings in secondary and upper secondary Swedish schools. The results showed that visualizations targeting randomness and genetic level events such as mutations can guide students towards a more scientific conception of natural selection. However, there were differences across the visualizations and student samples. In addition, while students often inferred randomness from the visuals, the results showed that integration of randomness into explanations of natural selection may be challenging. Hence, future research should explore the role of guidance and reflection for students' understanding of randomness. The thesis also discusses the role of students' intuitive conceptions in relation to the use of interactive visualizations and how these preconceptions interact with the presented message. By using the theory of frame semantics, framing effects and conceptual integration, students' issues of achieving an accurate understanding of evolution are discussed in relation to the theory of conceptual change. Implications for teaching and learning natural selection as well as visualization design for learning are also discussed.

Evolutionsteorin förstås ofta från som biologins förklarande teori. Vikten av en korrekt och användbar evolutionsförståelse har därför ofta betonats inte minst för elevernas förståelse inom biologins olika delområden. Men också för att fatta beslut i samhällsfrågor som exempelvis antibiotikaresistens. Många av de centrala delarna av evolutionsteorin är kontraintuitiva eller abstrakta och decennier av forskning har visat att elever har svårigheter att förstå evolutionens processer som mutation och naturligt urval. Representationer såsom visualiseringar, modeller och simuleringar är därför viktiga för att ge elever direkta erfarenheter av evolutionära processer även om vikten av visualiseringar är allmänt accepterad inom naturvetenskapsundervisning så är det mindre känt hur visualiseringars utformning specifikt bidrar till att utveckla elevers förståelse av vetenskapliga fenomen såsom evolution. Dessutom har forskningen på elevers evolutionsförståelse till stor del fokuserat på så kallade nyckelbegrepp variation, selektion och arv som har lett till flera vetenskapliga beskrivningar av evolutionsteorin. Dessa begrepp antas vara grundläggande men också tillräckliga för elevers evolutionsförståelse. Dock har vikten av icke-domenspecifika begrepp kopplade till evolutionsteorin såsom slump, sannolikhet, spatial och temporala skalor så kallade transskalbegrepp inte undersökts i någon hög grad. Den här avhandlingen använder Model of Educational Reconstruction för att utforska betydelsen av transskalbegrepp för evolutionsförståelse. Med utgångspunkt i den vetenskapliga beskrivningen och historiken undersöks förrekomsten av transskalbegrepp i befintliga visualiseringar för lärare samt elevers förklaringar för att formulera designprinciper för interaktiva visualiseringar av evolution. Dessutom beskrivs utvecklingen av ett antal interaktiva visualiseringar samt undersökningar av deras potentiella användning i klassrumsmiljöer. Avhandlingen diskuterar även betydelsen av elevers intuitiva förståelser i relation till användandet av interaktiva visualiseringar och hur dessa förståelser interagerar med det presenterade budskapet. Genom användning av ramsemantisk teori inklusive framingeffekter och blendteori diskuteras elevers svårigheter och utveckling av en vetenskaplig evolutionsförståelse i relation till tidigare teorier om begreppsförändring. Konsekvenser av ramsemantisk teori och framingeffekter i visuella medier diskuteras även i relation till visuell design för lärare.

Kingsland,2015-02-12 This volume explores problems in the history of science at the intersection of life sciences and agriculture from the mid eighteenth to the mid twentieth century Taking a comparative national perspective the book examines agricultural practices in a broad sense including the practices and disciplines devoted to land management forestry soil science and the improvement and management of crops and livestock The life sciences considered include genetics microbiology ecology entomology forestry and deal with US European Russian Japanese Indonesian Chinese contexts The book shows that the investigation of the border zone of life sciences and agriculture raises many interesting questions about how science develops In particular it challenges one to re examine and take seriously the intimate connection between scientific development and the practical goals of managing and improving perhaps even recreating the living world to serve human ends Without close attention to this zone it is not possible to understand the emergence of new disciplines and transformation of old disciplines to evaluate the role and impact of such major figures of science as Humboldt and Mendel or to appreciate how much of the history of modern biology has been driven by national ambitions and imperialist expansion in competition with rival nations
