Guy Murchie

Life In A Geometrical Town Project:

Manhattan Projects Samuel Zipp, 2010-05-24 Moving beyond the usual good versus evil story that pits master planner Robert Moses against the plucky neighborhood advocate Jane Jacobs Samuel Zipp sheds new light on the rise and fall of New York's urban renewal in the decades after World War II Focusing on four iconic Manhattan projects the United Nations building Stuyvesant Town Lincoln Center and the great swaths of public housing in East Harlem Zipp unearths a host of forgotten stories and characters that flesh out the conventional history of urban renewal He shows how boosters hoped to make Manhattan the capital of modernity and a symbol of American power but even as the builders executed their plans a chorus of critics revealed the dark side of those Cold War visions attacking urban renewal for perpetuating deindustrialization racial segregation and class division for uprooting thousands and for implanting a new alienating cityscape Cold War era urban renewal was not merely a failed planning ideal Zipp concludes but also a crucial phase in the transformation of New York into both a world city and one mired in urban crisis

Designing Community David R. Walters, 2007 Urban development sites can become battlegrounds as a result of the conflicting interests of developers and communities In the USA design charrettes are often used as a means of bringing people together using detailed design exercises to establish agreement around a development masterplan However despite the increasing frequency of their use charrettes are widely misunderstood and can be misapplied This book provides detailed guidance on the proper and most effective ways to use this helpful tool

The Seven Mysteries of Life Guy Murchie, 1999 All life in all worlds this was the object of the author's seventeen year quest for knowledge and discovery culminating in this book In a manner unmistakably his own Murchie delves into the interconnectedness of all life on the planet and of such fields as biology geology sociology mathematics and physics He offers us what the poet May Sarton has called a good book to take to a desert island as sole companion so rich is it in knowledge and insight

Urban Design Jon Lang, 1994 Urban Design the American Experience Jon Lang Urban Design The American Experience places social and environmental concerns within the context of American history It returns the focus of urban design to the creation of a better world It evaluates the efforts of designers who apply knowledge about the environment and people to the creation of livable enjoyable and even inspiring built worlds Urban Design The American Experience emphasizes that urban design must take a user oriented approach to achieve a higher quality of life in human settlements All the keys to this approach are spelled out in chapters that address Urban design as both a product and process of communal decision making Types of knowledge required as a base for urban design action How to apply recent environmental and behavioral research to professional design How human needs are fulfilled through design The true role of functionalism in design Urban design efforts of the twentieth century in the United States are examined within their socio political context Jon Lang reviews the urban design experience from the beginning of the City Beautiful movement paying particular attention to developments since World War II He explores how the twentieth century city has developed as well as discusses the attitudes that have driven major movements in urban design Readers learn a neo Modernist approach that builds on the successes and failures of Rationalism and Empiricism the two major streams of Modernist thought in architecture and urban design They also gain an understanding of how the environment is experienced by people and the implications of this experiencing for architectural and urban design Numerous illustrations throughout demonstrate how various design schemes can be used Urban Design The American Experience provides architects designers city planners and students in these fields with a model for their own future development as professionals It is a valuable guide to design methodology procedural theory and other issues related to creating optimal urban environments

Takasaki Masaharu Masaharu Takasaki,1998 The work of Tokyo based architect Takasaki Masaharu one of the most exciting and original architects working today has captivated those interested in individual and animated design Although his work is not widely known outside his own country for twenty years he has been creating unusual structures throughout Japan He recently received an award from the Japan Institute of Architects as the most outstanding young architect in the country Takasaki s designs combine the organic and the mythological He describes his architecture as an environmental being that connects humanity with the cosmos These philosophies manifest themselves in his use of egg shaped forms diffused light to create mystical interiors and skewed columns and planes The eight projects explored in this monograph include Crystal Light in Tokyo Tamana City Observatory Museum in Kumamoto Earth Architecture in Tokyo and Kihoku cho Astronomical Museum in Kagoshima Each building is thoroughly described through text photographs and drawings Also included is an illustrated list of the architect s projects and a critical text by Botond Bogнар author of The Japan Guide

Manufacturing a Socialist Modernity Kimberly Elman Zarecor,2011-04-10 Eastern European prefabricated housing blocks are often vilified as the visible manifestations of everything that was wrong with state socialism For many inside and outside the region the uniformity of these buildings became symbols of the dullness and drudgery of everyday life Manufacturing a Socialist Modernity complicates this common perception Analyzing the cultural intellectual and professional debates surrounding the construction of mass housing in early postwar Czechoslovakia Zarecor shows that these housing blocks served an essential function in the planned economy and reflected an interwar aesthetic derived from constructivism and functionalism that carried forward into the 1950s With a focus on prefabricated and standardized housing built from 1945 to 1960 Zarecor offers broad and innovative insights into the country's transition from capitalism to state socialism. She demonstrates that during this shift architects and engineers consistently strove to meet the needs of Czechs and Slovaks despite challenging economic conditions, a lack of material resources, and manufacturing and technological limitations. In the process, architects were asked to put aside their individual creative aspirations and transform themselves into technicians and industrial producers. Manufacturing a Socialist Modernity is the first comprehensive history of architectural practice and the emergence of prefabricated housing in the Eastern Bloc. Through discussions of individual architects and projects as well as building typologies, professional associations, and institutional organization, it opens a rare window into the cultural and economic life of Eastern Europe during the early postwar period.

Florentine New Towns David Friedman, 1988 Florentine New Towns is an original and comprehensive study of an important episode in late Medieval urbanism.

Dialogue with the Past Glenn Whitman, 2004-09-15 Oral history is a marvelous force for empowering young people with a love of history. But educators today may wonder how they might use it to inspire their students while still teaching the necessary curriculum and meeting standards. In Dialogue with the Past, Glenn Whitman addresses these concerns from his own rich experience and that of many other teachers and students. He helps readers understand the background and methodology of oral history, guides them in creating and conducting an oral history project in the classroom, and directly addresses the issue of meeting standards. Peppered with useful tips, examples from students and teachers, and reproducible forms, along with a comprehensive bibliography, this book will be a vital and inspirational tool for anyone working with secondary students. Architecture, Technology and Process Chris Abel, 2007-03-30 This new selection of essays follows Chris Abel's previous best-selling collection Architecture and Identity. Drawing upon a wide range of knowledge and disciplines, the author argues that underlying technological changes in the process of architectural production are fundamental changes in the way we think about machines and the world we live in. Key topics include new patterns of urbanism in the fast-growing cities of Asia-Pacific, metaphorical extensions of mind and body in cyberspace, the divergent European and North American values shaping Sir Norman Foster's and Frank Gehry's work, and the collaborative work methods and technologies creating the adaptable design practices of today.

Future Cities ECAADE (Association), 2010 Future Cities For the first time in human history, more than 50% of the world's population lives in urban regions. Cities are the largest, most complex, and most dynamic man-made systems. They are vibrant centers of cultural life and engines that drive the global economy. Contemporary cities are environmentally, socially, and economically unsustainable. The quality of urban life is threatened by such factors as pollution, rising temperatures, limited resources, congestion, social inequalities, aging of large sectors of the world population, poverty, informality, crime, and economic imbalances. The overall planning of future cities is a challenge that can only be faced by interdisciplinary teams combining multitudes of backgrounds and expertise.

The Nature of Order, Book Two: The Process of Creating Life Christopher Alexander, 2020-03-30 Scientifically this is perhaps the most exciting of the four books How do beautiful creations come into being Nature can make an infinite number of human faces each one unique each one beautiful The same is true for daffodils streams and stars But man made creations especially the towns and buildings of the 20th century have only occasionally been really good more often mediocre and in the last 50 years have most often been deadly What is the reason for the difference It hinges on the deep nature of the processes we use Merely understanding the geometry of beautiful and living form the topic of Book 1 is not enough to help us create such a living geometry In the 20th century our society was locked into deadly processes which created our current built environment process that most people were not really aware of and did not question Despite their best efforts and intentions architects and planners working within these processes could not achieve a living built environment Life and beauty in the built world arise only from processes which allow living structure to unfold The secret lies in knowing as nature does what must happen in what order what sequence of events allows a living form to unfold successfully Here in Book 2 Alexander puts forward a fully developed theory of living process He defines conditions for a process to be living that is capable of generating living structure He shows how such processes work and how they may be created At the core of the new theory is the theory of structure preserving transformations This concept new in scientific thinking is based on the concept of wholeness defined in Book 1 A structure preserving transformation is one which preserves extends and enhances the wholeness of a system Structure preserving transformations provide the means for any step by step process social biological architectural or technical to reach configurations which are most profound most capable of supporting life The process of creation whether in the formation of a single object or in the piece meal aggregation of a town requires this sort of generative process a careful and deliberate sequence of steps in which each step creates the context for the next one and each next wholeness is derived from the previous wholeness Our billions of beautiful and unique human faces come from one class of sequences Driven by these sequences an initial cell differentiates again and again until beautiful and complex human beings emerge infinitely various always harmonious Making changes in society so that streets buildings rooms gardens and towns may be generated by hundreds of such sequences requires massive transformations This book is the first blueprint of those transformations
