

What Parents & Carers Need to Know about FACEBOOK

AGE RATING
13+

With 2.8 billion users, Facebook, owned by the recently rebranded Meta, is the world's most popular social media platform. It encourages interaction with other people by (among other things) adding them as friends, reacting to or commenting on their content, sharing images and videos, posting status updates, joining groups and playing games. Facebook is free, and anyone over 13 can join – but with no age verification, younger children can easily create an account: it's likely your child is already familiar with the platform, even if they don't yet use it themselves.

WHAT ARE THE RISKS?

ADDICTIVE NATURE

Facebook's quick reward cycle of likes and comments on shared posts can be hugely addictive. It encourages users to keep returning for good things and instant FOMO (the fear of missing out), which leads to people checking the app even more frequently and themselves constantly scrolling through content.

CYBERBULLYING

A 2013 Ofcom report found that around one in four 11–19-year-olds had been cyberbullied or bullied (intentionally embarrassed online). On Facebook, you can message through private messages, join groups, comment on posts, and comments on their profiles and public pages or groups can go private to friends or public or hidden from friends or groups.

FUTURE IMPACT

Like most social media platforms, anything posted on Facebook leaves a permanent 'digital footprint'. This can have future consequences for young people. For example, you can see someone's Facebook timeline during the application process.

CONTACT FROM STRANGERS

Just like in the offline world, there are people on Facebook with malicious intentions. Children can, for instance, chat 100% or 100%+ and be added as a friend request from a stranger. This, sadly, can include individuals seeking to take advantage of impressionable youngsters.

OVERSHARING

Facebook encourages you to post 'what's on your mind' but it should be wary of revealing too much about themselves online. Users can give away their location by checking in on their Facebook Live for example, where some photos can also be traced using the data.

INAPPROPRIATE CONTENT

Facebook monitors and removes material like hate speech or extreme political views, but children can still see inappropriate content from targeting under-18s based on their interests. Offensive content isn't always removed, so there's still a risk of children encountering it.

VIDEOS AND STREAMING

Facebook Live lets users stream video live to their friends or watch others'. In many cases, viewers can comment in real time, which is problematic for moderate. Short user-created clips can also be shared on other sites like WhatsApp and email. These video features could also be used to share inappropriate or abusive content that they wouldn't normally do.

Advice for Parents & Carers

KEEP ACCOUNTS PRIVATE

In the settings area, you can choose whether a Facebook profile is public or private. By far the safest option is to choose a private profile, so they can only interact with people who they are friends with on the platform. Facebook's settings can be changed, but you should a personal information (such as contact details, school name or date of birth) from appearing publicly.

SAVVY SHARING

Make sure your child realises that what they share online with friends can end up being shared. It's important to be aware of what they think about what they share online and what they share it with. Facebook's audience selector is a good tool to use, but it's important to make sure they are sharing, whenever a status is updated, photos are uploaded or anything is posted.

ENCOURAGE SAFE FRIENDING

Facebook can help your child to stay connected with the people and the things that they care about. It's important to encourage them to understand that they should only accept friend requests from people who they know. This key message is to encourage your child to meet them in person and to stay safe and trust them enough to feel comfortable accepting them as a Facebook friend.

RESPECT BOUNDARIES

Once you've talked about Facebook safety with your child, give them some space and trust them to make smart choices. Make it clear, however, that you're always open to discussing social media if they need to. In the early stages, it's important to encourage your child to be active with them to put your mind at rest – but take care not to become reliant on checking it every night.

LEAD BY EXAMPLE

Let your child watch you using Facebook – this will demonstrate how it can be used safely and responsibly. Encourage them to be aware of and avoid sharing harmful content themselves. Teach them the habit of thinking before sharing. Don't let them try to follow their own rules that you set for them – so if you agree time limits on your child's Facebook use, then you should stick to them, too.

BLOCK AND REPORT

On Facebook, you're able to report harmful content and block particular people or groups. If you do block your child or view their profile, before they start spending serious time on the platform, show your child how to use the reporting tools. If they may need to be used, Facebook's bullying prevention hub offers advice on dealing with harassment on the platform.
