F. Seber, Matthew R. Schofield, 2023-12-01 This comprehensive book covers a wide variety of methods for estimating the sizes and related parameters of closed populations With the effect of climate change and human territory invasion we have seen huge species losses and a major biodiversity decline Populations include plants trees various land and sea animals and some human populations With such a diversity of populations an extensive variety of different methods are described with the collection of different types of data For example we have count data from plot sampling which can also allow for incomplete detection There is a large chapter on occupancy methods where a major interest is determining whether a particular species is present or not Citizen and opportunistic survey data can also be incorporated A related topic is species methods where species richness and species interactions are of interest A variety of distance methods are discussed One can use distances from points and lines as well as nearest neighbor distances The applications are extensive and include marine acoustic and aerial surveys using multiple observers or detection devices Line intercept measurements have a role to play such as for example estimating parameters relating to plant coverage An increasingly important class of removal methods considers successive removals from a population with physical removal or removal by capture recapture of marked individuals With the change in ratio method removals are taken from two or more classes e.g. males and females Effort data used for removals can also be used A very important method for estimating abundance is the use of capture recapture data collected discretely or continuously and can be analysed using both frequency and Bayesian methods Computational aspects of fitting Bayesian models are described A related topic of growing interest is the use of spatial and camera methods With the plethora of models there has been a corresponding development of various computational methods and packages which are often

mentioned throughout Covariate data is being used more frequently which can reduce the number of unknown parameters by using logistic and loglinear models An important computational aspect is that of model selection methods The book provides a useful list of over 1400 references
