Abrahamson, Arthur E. Weis, 2020-03-31 In a work that will interest researchers in ecology genetics botany entomology and parasitology Warren Abrahamson and Arthur Weis present the results of more than twenty five years of studying plant insect interactions Their study centers on the ecology and evolution of interactions among a host plant the parasitic insect that attacks it and the suite of insects and birds that are the natural enemies of the parasite Because this system provides a model that can be subjected to experimental manipulations it has allowed the authors to address specific theories and concepts that have guided biological research for more than two decades and to engage general problems in evolutionary biology The specific subjects of research are the host plant goldenrod Solidago the parasitic insect Eurosta solidaginis Diptera Tephritidae that induces a gall on the plant stem and a number of natural enemies of the gallfly By presenting their detailed empirical studies of the Solidago Eurosta natural enemy system the authors demonstrate the complexities of specialized enemy victim interactions and thereby the complex interactive relationships among species more broadly By utilizing a diverse array of field laboratory behavioral genetic chemical and statistical techniques Abrahamson and Weis present the most thorough study to date of a single system of interacting species Their interest in the evolutionary ecology of plant insect interactions leads them to insights on the evolution of species interactions in general This major work will interest anyone involved in studying the ways in which interdependent species interact

Basic Principles and Techniques of Molecular Quantum Mechanics Ralph E. Christoffersen,2013-03-08 New textbooks at all levels of chemistry appear with great regularity Some fields like basic biochemistry organic reaction mechanisms and chemical thermodynamics are well represented by many excellent texts and new or revised editions are published sufficiently often to keep up with progress in research However some areas of chemistry especially many of those taught at the graduate level suffer from a real lack of up to date textbooks The most serious needs occur in fields that are rapidly changing Textbooks in these subjects usually have to be written by scientists actually involved in the research which is advancing the field It is not often easy to persuade such individuals to set time aside to help spread the knowledge they have accumulated Our goal in this series is to pinpoint areas of chemistry where recent progress has outpaced what is covered in any available textbooks and then seek out and persuade experts in these fields to produce relatively concise but instructive introductions to their fields These should serve the needs of one semester or one quarter graduate courses in chemistry and biochemistry In some cases the availability of texts in active research areas should help stimulate the creation of new courses New York New York CHARLES R CANTOR Preface This book is not a traditional quantum chemistry textbook Instead it represents a concept that has evolved from teaching graduate courses in quantum chemistry over a number of years and encountering students with diverse backgrounds
