Brokaw,2020-03-23 Sibao today is a cluster of impoverished villages in the mountains of western Fujian Yet from the late seventeenth through the early twentieth century it was home to a flourishing publishing industry Through itinerant booksellers and branch bookshops managed by Sibao natives this industry supplied much of south China with cheap educational texts household guides medical handbooks and fortune telling manuals It is precisely the ordinariness of Sibao imprints that make them valuable for the study of commercial publishing the text production process and the geographical and social expansion of book culture in Chinese society In a study with important implications for cultural and economic history Cynthia Brokaw describes rural lower level publishing and bookselling operations at the end of the imperial period Commerce in Culture traces how the poverty and isolation of Sibao necessitated a bare bones approach to publishing and bookselling and how the Hakka identity of the Sibao publishers shaped the configuration of their distribution networks and even the nature of their publications Sibao s industry reveals two major trends in print culture the geographical extension of commercial woodblock publishing to hinterlands previously untouched by commercial book culture and the related social penetration of texts to lower status levels of the population Engn II - The Clockwork War Simon Kewin, The wheels of the great machine turn again Three years after the destruction of Engn Finn is awoken by a shattering earthquake As the people of the valley flee the ruins rumours circulate that the machinery of Engn is working once more Finn is haunted by the thought that Connor desperately needed him to do something Uncovering buried secrets Finn sees he has to return to the wreckage of Engn to find the answers to his questions To him the events of the Clockwork War are history but he learns that others are still fighting the ancient battle For them the machinery of Engn and its mysterious purpose are at the heart of everything Diane refuses to come with him thinking he needs to put the past behind him But then Engn s line of sight signals start to broadcast again Rural Repository ,1848 The Saturday Review of Politics, Literature, Science and Art ,1866

The Mercantile Ethical Tradition in Edo

Period Japan Ichiro Horide,2019-07-04 This book demonstrates that during Japan s early modern Edo period 1603 1868 an ethical code existed among the merchant class comparable to that of the well known Bushido There is compelling evidence that contemporary merchants who were widely and openly despised as immoral by the samurai in fact acted in highly ethical ways in accordance with a well articulated moral code Japanese society was strictly stratified into four distinct and formally recognized classes warrior farmer craftsman and merchant From the warriors perspective the merchants at the base of the social order had no virtue and existed only to skim profits as middlemen between producers and consumers But were these accusations correct Were the merchants really unethical beings who engaged in unfair business practices There is ample evidence that negates the ubiquitous slanders of the warrior class and suggests that merchants no less than the warriors possessed and acted in accordance with a well developed ethical code a spirit that may be called shonindo or The Way of the Merchant This book examines whether a comparison of shonindo depicting the ethical point of view of the merchant class and Bushido embodying that of the warrior class reveals that shonindo may have in fact surpassed Bushido in some aspects Comparing contemporarily published historical documents concerning both shonindo and Bushido as well as Inazo Nitobe s classic work Bushido The Soul of Japan published in 1900 the author examines how Bushido surpassed shonindo in that warriors were willing to die for their strict ethical code Shonindo however may have surpassed Bushido in that merchants were liberal willing to expand and extend application of their ethical beliefs into all aspects of everyday life for the overall benefit of society This ethical code is compared with that of the conservative Bushido which demonstrably proved not up to the task for the modernization and improved well being of Japan Ichiro Horide is professor emeritus of Reitaku University Edward Yagi Reitaku University and Stanley J Ziobro II Trident Technical College collaborated in the translation of the original Japanese manuscript into English ABA Journal ,1992-06 The ABA Journal serves the legal profession Qualified recipients are lawyers and judges law students law librarians and associate members of the American Bar Association □□
