Model 1: The Oral Glucose Tolerance Test (OGTT)

The Oral Glucose Tolerance Test is often used to detect diabetes mellitus. The following procedure is used to conduct an OGTT:

1. The test is conducted to test a test subject during the day, fasting, up to three times.
2. Fasting is measured as the time going in (baseline) for 8 to 12 hours prior to the test (usually overnight).
3. An individual patient is asked to prepare glucose collection (the subject) and concentrations of the solution or the amount to be given to the patient is known weight/age.
4. Measurements of the patient's blood glucose levels are taken every 30 minutes or every hour for 2 hours (the subject) and a blood glucose sample is collected at the end of the OGTT. In general, each morning, morning, the blood glucose are taken at these times and at their levels. In general, doctors using the OGTT glucose levels are recorded every frequently and for longer duration of time.

The following data table shows acceptable maximum concentrations values for the OGTT:

Time (minutes)	0	30	60	90	120
Maximum Blood Glucose (mg/dL)	100	175	140	110	100
Maximum Blood Glucose (mg/dL)	90	160	130	100	90

QUESTIONS

1. What do people measure in the test of the Oral Glucose Tolerance Test? How is the subject and concentration data used?
2. glucose infusion + metabolic and endocrine (very, providing to body weight)
