Arabic Calligraphy Mustafa Ja'far, 2002 Naskh is one of the six major cursive Arabic scripts Its origins can be traced back to the late eighth century AD and it is still in use today In its earliest form Naskh was a utilitarian script used mainly for correspondence but during the tenth and eleventh centuries it was completely transformed by the elegant refinements of the great Abbasid calligraphers The Ottoman Turks also considered Naskh the script most suited for copying the Qur'an Throughout the Islamic world there are more Qur'ans copied in Naskh than in all other Arabic scripts combined For centuries novice Arabic calligraphers have begun their training with the practice of Naskh a tradition that continues today This introductory workbook now makes it possible for everyone to learn and enjoy the beauty of Arabic calligraphy Based on his experience of running workshops and demonstrations Mustafa Ja'far has distilled the basics into an easy to follow teach yourself guide Arabic Script in Motion M. Javad Khajavi, 2019-04-12 This book is a pioneering study of temporal typography and time based calligraphic art written in the Arabic system of writing Inspired by the innate qualities of Arabic script as well as certain practices in Islamic calligraphy and contemporary calligraphic art the book devises five broad categories of temporal behaviors for Arabic characters in time based media It goes on to expand the vocabulary used to describe Arabic script's appearance in time based media and proposes a theory to help artists practitioners and theoreticians push the boundaries of temporal text based art Furthermore it tackles questions of legibility and readability and seeks to understand how temporality of Arabic text influences the creation of meaning This book will therefore appeal not only to animators designers and artists but also to commentators and scholars who deal with temporal text based art written in Arabic script The Type of Calligraphy J. R. (Wayne) Osborn, 2008 This dissertation examines multiple applications of Arabic script and the relationship linking visual design with written communication It presents typography and calligraphy as distinct communicative practices and explores the importance of print culture and printed material in relation to the rise of the modern bureaucratic state The work is arranged in seven chapters each illustrating how changes in the visual appearance of Arabic letters connote distinct channels of textual authority and knowledge Chapter 1 opens a comparative framework with three models of writing in relation to religious tradition and Chapter 2 explores written communication through the lens of grammatology Chapter 3 delves into the Arabic calligraphic tradition the symbolic interpretation of letters and the meanings of multiple scripts With the arrival of print Arabic writing practices shifted in response to a new communication technology and Chapter 4 outlines the Ottoman adoption of print technology This section examines historical and archival material which chronicles early Ottoman printing as well as post print developments of Ottoman calligraphic art The symbolic visual and textual changes that accompanied the new medium are addressed in Chapter 5 and Chapter 6 introduces a comparative study of Arabic letter design in modern Jordan A series of interviews with practicing calligraphers graphic designers and contemporary artists highlight diverse applications of Arabic script and the flexibility of written communication and Finally Chapter 7 reflects upon the historical trajectory of previous chapters to ask what the story of Arabic script might teach us about the future of writing This chapter traces the continuity of calligraphy and digital design and suggests a more nuanced concept of writing for digital practice As practices of writing continue to shift both in the Middle East and globally visual conventions surrounding Arabic script provide a wealth of strategies worthy of preservation and exploration

Islamic Heritage Architecture and Art
III J. Casares, S. Dominguez Amarillo, 2020-08-11 Islamic architecture has enriched design with a wide variety of structural shapes including among others unique arches a wide variety of vaults and domes which allow for new forms to be developed The influence that these structural forms have in non Islamic countries was one of the themes of the 3rd International Conference on Islamic Heritage Architecture and Art at which the included papers were presented There is much to learn from past experiences to arrive at solutions which are environmentally sound and sustainable in the long term As conventional energy resources become scarce the Islamic design heritage can offer invaluable lessons on how to deal in an efficient manner with cases of hard and extreme environments Traditional architecture and urban environments in most Islamic countries are now being eroded by overemphasis on a global type of architecture and city planning As a consequence many regions are losing their identity It will become increasingly important for new developments to take light of what the classical Islamic urban designs and architectures have to offer modern society An equally important aspect covered is the analysis of the materials employed and the types of structural elements particularly those unique to Islamic architecture Preserving this heritage requires the development of appropriate conservation techniques in response to the different materials used and the ways structural forms work including under extreme conditions such as earthquakes These papers deal with the design of many types of buildings in Islamic countries including not only the better known public buildings like mosques mausolea citadels and forts but also houses and gardens engineering works such as bridges and dams irrigation
