Archaeology Under Dictatorship:

Archaeology Under Dictatorship Michael L. Galaty, Charles Watkinson, 2007-03-14 Archaeological knowledge is not created in a vacuum and our understanding of the past is profoundly affected by political ideologies. In fact, a relationship between politics and archaeology develops to some degree in every nation regardless of social and economic circumstances. The connections between politics and archaeology become most visible however within a totalitarian dictatorship when a dictator seeks to create and legitimize new state supported ideologies. Any dictator may attempt to control and exploit the past often by directly controlling archaeologists. The degree to which a nation's archaeological system may continue to be affected after the fall of the dictator depends upon both the previous regime's ideological position and its level of dependence upon archaeology and the response of archaeologists to the regime collectively and individually. Archaeology Under Dictatorship demonstrates that the study of archaeology as it evolved under modern dictatorships is today more than ever of critical importance. For example, in many European countries those who practiced archaeology under dictatorship are retiring or dying. In some places their intellectual legacy is being pursued uncritically by a younger generation of archaeologists. Now is the time therefore to understand how archaeologists have supported and sometimes subverted dictatorial political ideologies. In studying archaeology as practiced under totalitarian dictatorship, that most harsh of political systems, light is shed on the issue of politics and archaeology generally. This volume aims to provide a theoretical basis for understanding the specific effects of totalitarian dictatorship upon the practice of archaeology both during and after the dictator's reign. The nine essays explore experiences from every corner of the Mediterranean from the heartlands of Italy, Spain, and Greece to the less well known shores of Albania and Libya. With its wide range of case studies and strong theoretical orientation, this volume is a major advance in the study of the history and politics of archaeology. The Mediterranean focus will also make it thought provoking reading for classical archaeologists and historians.

Memories from Darkness Pedro Funari, Andres Zarankin, Melissa Salerno, 2009-09-23 To Write What one Could Not Tell. Anyone who lives in all tranquility. So warm and comfortable in your houses. You who come home at night to find the table laid and friendly faces around you. Consider if this is a man. He who toils in the mud. Who knows no rest. Who fights for a crust of bread. Who dies for the slightest reason. Consider if this is a woman. She who has lost her name and her hair. And even the strength to remember. Her gaze blank and her bosom chilled. Like a frog in winter. Do not forget that this happened. No, do not forget it. Engrave these words in your heart. Think of them in your home, in the street. When you sleep, when you rise. Repeat them to your children. Or else your house will crumble You will be overcome by illness And your children will turn away from you Levi 1987 9 the translations is mine At Auschwitz Filip Müller was assigned to the Sonderkommando Every day with his fellow prisoners he emptied the gas chambers of their piles of defiled corpses and loaded them into the crematorium furnaces of the extermination camp in Europe and its Legacies Martijn Eickhoff, Daniel Modl, Katie Meheux, Erwin Nuijten, 2023-08-14 This edited volume is dedicated to national socialist archaeology as a Europe wide phenomenon It analyses national socialist attempts to denationalize the archaeologies of European nations by creating a new unifying European archaeology on a racial basis From the beginning of the nineteenth century archaeology began to develop into an important force behind processes of nation building At the same time structures of transnational academic collaboration contributed strongly to the internal dynamics of the research field which was primarily organized on a national basis In those European countries that were confronted with national socialist occupation and repression between 1939 and 1945 these transnational archaeological networks were to prove crucial for the development of national socialist archaeological policies This volume will reveal how national socialist archaeology was to an extent valued positively in its time as highly innovative even influencing the archaeology of non occupied countries Although in the final instance it generally failed to displace the national archaeologies in Europe the volume also analyses the long term impact of national socialist rule on the development of European archaeology How did the attempts to create a unified European archaeology after 1945 continue to influence networks methods and terminologies institutional structures or popular representations of the early past Chapter 1 Is available open access under a Creative Commons Attribution 4 0 International License via Springerlink reviews First of all an assessment is made as to whether the geographical context affected the way knowledge of prehistoric archaeology was produced Secondly the mechanisms and networks that allowed the international transmission of both ideas and practices linked to prehistoric archaeology are assessed A third aspect looked into is the reception of knowledge linking this with issues such as academic prestige and authority Archaeology as Political Action Randall H. perspectives on the origins and developments of the discipline of archaeology and the direction of future advances in the field. Written by thirty six archaeologists and historians from all over the world it covers a wide range of themes and debates including biographical accounts of key figures scientific techniques and archaeological fieldwork practices institutional contexts and the effects of religion nationalism and colonialism on the development of archaeology. Interdisciplinarity and Archaeology Laura Coltofean-Arizancu, Margarita Díaz-Andreu, 2021-03-15 This book explores the history of interdisciplinary relationships between archaeology and other branches of knowledge in Europe and elsewhere. This is a largely untold history that needs to be unpacked. This book brings to light some of the events leading towards interdisciplinary relations in archaeology from the nineteenth to the twentieth century. It encompasses ten scholarly contributions that offer a critical overview of this complex dynamic and long lasting transformative process. This is a pioneering project in the field of the history of archaeology as it is the first to examine the inclusion into archaeological practice of various disciplines categorized under the umbrella of hard natural and social sciences as well as the humanities. The authors of this volume include internationally acknowledged scholars of the history of archaeology such as Margarita Díaz-Andreu Nathan Schlanger and Oscar Moro as well as other well established authors in the field from Italy Portugal Romania Spain and Switzerland. The chapters cover a wide range of topics. Several of them deal with interdisciplinarity in archaeology on a more general level by analysing its relationship with other sciences in specific countries. Other chapters discuss the incorporation of disciplines such as palynology and zoology into archaeology either on a wider scale or using certain countries as case studies. Some authors focus on the work of scholars as starting points for examining the intersection between antiquarianism archaeology the natural sciences and numismatics while others theorize on the influence of epistemology and philosophy of science on archaeological theory and practice. Finally the influence of the army is also discussed in the development of archaeology.

European Archaeology Abroad S.J. van der Linde, 2013-10-01 What are European archaeologists doing abroad? What have they been doing there for the past three to four centuries? Are they doing things differently nowadays? To address these questions this book explores the scope impact and ethics of European archaeological policies and practices in the Mediterranean area the Near East sub-Saharan Africa Asia and Latin America. Acknowledging that international and transcultural projects have a range of different stakeholders the first part of this book aims to identify some of the values and motivations behind different European archaeologies abroad. This is done by providing thorough historical overviews on a range of European countries including France Spain Germany Belgium the Netherlands and Poland. But how are these values translated through socio-political theoretical and administrative frameworks unto local circumstances in host countries? And how are these archaeological activities received locally? The second part of this book attempts to answer these questions through a range of historical and contemporary case studies in Africa in Asia in South America in the Near East and in Europe. The third part of the book offers several critical reflections on European values motivations and collaboration projects.

as perceived by archaeological heritage professionals based in and or working in Senegal Sudan Somaliland Colombia and the Near East This collection of historical overviews contemporary case studies and critical reflections focuses on the challenging relationships between archaeological practices and policies including the requirements and wishes of archaeologists of local communities and of other stakeholders in Europe and in the host countries In addition to researchers and students this book should be of interest to practicing archaeologists heritage professionals and policy makers the world over as they seek to reach better informed decisions regarding archaeological projects and international collaboration This publication was produced in the framework of the ACE project Archaeology in Contemporary Europe Professional Practices and Public Outreach with the support of the Culture 2007 2013 programme of the European Commission Archaeology Matters Jeremy A Sabloff,2016-06-16 Senior archaeologist Jeremy Sabloff points students to ways in which archaeology is can be relevant to the understanding and amelioration of modern problems
