Intentional Invisibilization in Modern Asian History: Concealing and Self-Concealed Agents Mònica Ginés-Blasi, 2025-03-03 Scholars from the humanities and social sciences have repeatedly faced the challenge of writing history beyond the constraints and frameworks set by grand narratives and established historiographies This book addresses the intentional invisibilization and concealment of people knowledge and ideas in historiography both by historians and by the historical actors themselves as an object of study It does so through the lens of Asian bondage and dependency in modern and contemporary history This collective work focuses on concealment self concealment and invisibility to analyze the asymmetrical agency involved in the act of hiding someone or something from being inscribed in the record and the social marginalization involved in this process With studies ranging from imperial colonial and postcolonial history language and translation studies as well as digital archival sciences the authors in this book examine ways in which concealment serves as a strategic tool for exercising power and shaping the flow of information Consequently this volume urges a fresh awareness of narrative construction encouraging humanities researchers to think creatively and to historicize independently of dominant narratives

The Future of Archives and Recordkeeping Jennie Hill, 2011 The way in which we view the nature of archives and the role of the archivist has changed significantly in the last few decades With increasing interest from outside of the profession the idea of archives as the static impartial carriers of truth and the archivist as a guardian of records has been questioned how can society take greater control over its own written memory There have been a number of other changes which have impacted upon the way archivists conceive of themselves and the way in which they work Chief among these are the rapid rise of technology and the challenges this poses and the changing place of archives within related fields such as records and information management It is imperative that archivists engage with these challenges if archives are to emerge as a renewed force in the 21st century This much needed book is designed not as a practical guide to professional practice but rather as a reader addressing these challenges The chapters are contributed by leaders in the field and are grouped around the following four core themes defining archives shaping a discipline Archives 2 0 archives in society archives in the information age is there still a role for the archivist Each chapter represents a defined argument in its own right to enable readers to dip in and out of the collection as they wish and the book is structured to highlight chapters that share a common theme Readership Archivists and students of archive administration Archives Laura A.
