Bencivenga,2014-07-14 Through an interpretation of Montaigne's philosophical vision as expressed in his Essays Ermanno Bencivenga contributes to the current debate about the death of the subject by developing a view of the self as a project of continuous construction rather than the source and foundation of knowledge This latter Cartesian conception of self consciousness as a logical and epistemological starting point is Bencivenga contends delusive the certainty it provides is more akin to faith than to a cognitive state How then do we acquire knowledge of the self Montaigne makes for a productive case study in this regard he declares that he himself is the matter of his book and that nothing but the constitution of his own self is his business A study of Montaigne reveals that the fundamental category missing in the Cartesian conception of the self is that of practical effort The self is not a ready made entity available for inspection and analysis but something whose generation requires exercise training and discipline It is the result of an operation that must be performed not just once but as in all training over and over again until it becomes second nature Bencivenga characterizes the particular training required by the project of constituting a subject as a revolutionary transgressive critical one which shares with philosophical activity a profoundly playful irrelevance to the ready to hand Originally published in 1990 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905

Rescher,2012-12-06 The increasingly lively controversy over scientific realism has become one of the principal themes of recent philosophy 1 In watching this controversy unfold in the rather technical way currently in vogue it has seemed to me that it would be useful to view these contemporary disputes against the background of such older epistemological issues as fallibilism scepticism relativism and the traditional realism idealism debate This then is the object of the present book which will recon sider the newer concerns about scientific realism in the context of these older philosophical themes Historically realism concerns itself with the real existence of things that do not meet the eye with suprasensible entities that lie beyond the reach of human perception In medieval times discussions about realism focused upon universals Recognizing that there are physical objects such as cats and triangular objects and red tomatoes the medievels debated whether such abstract objects as cathood and triangularity and redness also exist by way of having a reality indepen dent of the concretely real things that exhibit them Three fundamen tally different positions were defended 1 Nominalism Abstracta have no independent existence as such they only exist in and through the objects that exhibit them Only particulars individual substances exist Abstract objects are existents in name only mere thought fictions by whose means we address concrete particular things 2 Realism Abstracta have an independent existence as such
