The Higher Education Institutions Handbook, 2012      Utilising Positive Psychology for the Transition into University Life Peter JO Aloka, 2024-10-16 This book uses a positive psychology approach to assist freshmen first year students in the transition to University life. New University students are faced with varied adjustment challenges on the transition from secondary school to higher education because there are vast differences between secondary schooling and university environment including learning and teaching styles, expectation to manage themselves. Positive psychology involves reflecting on one's weaknesses and strengths and how to capitalize on the latter and so using case studies from South African universities, this book details how knowledge of one's strengths and weaknesses can help new University students engage in the learning process. As such, this pioneering work will be of interest to students, educators and therapy practitioners alike.

The Status of Student Involvement in University Governance in Kenya Mulinge, Munyae M., Arasa, Josephine N., 2017-05-05 This book examines the concept of the democratization of governance in universities in Kenya with particular emphasis on students' involvement in governance processes and decision making. Data were collected from members of the student community utilizing a structured self-administered questionnaire and from purposively selected key informants and focus group discussants drawn from Kenyatta University representing the public sector and the United States International University representing the private sector. The guiding argument for the study was that shared governance, one of the principles of good governance, is critical in enabling the universities to deliver their visions and the missions effectively. The results revealed that while in principle Kenyan universities have embraced democratic governance in which all stakeholders including students have a role to play, in practice they continue to violate the core principles of good governance, particularly shared governance. Specifically, students who are major stakeholders in university education are largely excluded from significant structures of governance, thereby limiting their influence and participation. Although their representation is mainly provided via student self-governance organs, unions, associations and/or councils, their effectiveness is undermined considerably by the lack of trust and confidence of the student body and the unending manipulation by top university administrators and external political actors. Student active involvement in decision making is mainly confined to lower levels such as the school faculty and departmental programme. The authors call for a paradigm shift in the involvement of students in the governance of universities in ways that discourage the current culture of tokenism and political correctness that characterizes public and private universities in Kenya.

Governance and Transformations of Universities in Africa Fredrick. M. Nafukho, Helen M. A. Muyia, Beverly Irby, 2014-06-01 While universities world over are undergoing reforms and change, in the case of African universities as illustrated in this book, the reforms and changes are profound and can best be described as transformative. This book is unique in many ways which makes it extraordinary. First, unlike other books that have examined issues on higher education in Africa from externalist positions, the contributors to this book are scholars who have been educated in currently teaching in African universities or have taught in African universities The book specifically focuses on transformations in the governance of African universities and its implications on equity entrepreneurship innovation quality assurance information and communication technologies ICTs and reform issues in higher education in Africa The book presents pertinent research on governance in African universities in an experiential and empirical manner The contributors of the book chapters include individuals actively involved in teaching researching and governance of higher education institutions in Africa The chapters are based on empirical data including review of relevant literature The book also recognizes that university governance is more than just crisis in financial or economic issues but includes best management practices shared governance meaningful reforms strategic planning consultation transparency and accountability client students lecturers parents and the public satisfaction as well as the role of the university in development The contributions take cognizance of the fact that governance as a concept is facing fundamental changes in the context of global knowledge economy and African local conditions Contributors also take cognizance of the fact that one important source of change in Africa has been the accelerating speed of scientific and technological advancement in learning at universities where lifelong learning programs adult learning programs distance and online learning are relatively new The chapters are also sensitive to new changes in gender demographical technological education reforms social and economic transformations in the governance of African universities The book is basically an academic book for use by undergraduates and graduate students at universities policy makers and formulators in African ministries of Education supra national organizations foreign organizations working in Africa NGOs and CBOs as well as development stakeholders and community organizers

Mental Health Crisis in Higher Education Aloka, Peter, 2023-12-29 The COVID 19 pandemic brought about a sudden transition from traditional face to face instruction to online and blended learning The repercussions of this seismic change have left an indelible mark on students particularly those thrust into the challenging realm of fully engaging in online learning during this tumultuous period As we navigate the delicate landscape of higher education post pandemic a critical gap in scholarly literature becomes glaringly apparent there is a scarcity of focused works addressing the nuanced well being of students in this new academic reality Mental Health Crisis in Higher Education is a groundbreaking book that boldly steps into this void offering a comprehensive and meticulously researched examination of the challenges faced by students transitioning from secondary to higher education amid the pandemic By delving into stressors coping mechanisms and the intricate web of factors influencing emotional psychological and physical well being the book is an invaluable resource for academics researchers and institutions seeking to understand and address the multifaceted dimensions of student well being
