Aging and Loss Jason Danely, 2015-01-02 By 2030 over 30% of the Japanese population will be 65 or older foreshadowing the demographic changes occurring elsewhere in Asia and around the world What can we learn from a study of the aging population of Japan and how can these findings inform a path forward for the elderly their families and for policy makers Based on nearly a decade of research Aging and Loss examines how the landscape of aging is felt understood and embodied by older adults themselves In detailed portraits anthropologist Jason Danely delves into the everyday lives of older Japanese adults as they construct narratives through acts of reminiscence social engagement and ritual practice and reveals the pervasive cultural aesthetic of loss and of being a burden Through first hand accounts of rituals in homes cemeteries and religious centers Danely argues that what he calls the self in suspense can lead to the emergence of creative participation in an economy of care In everyday rituals for the spirits older adults exercise agency and reinterpret concerns of social abandonment within a meaningful cultural narrative and by reimagining themselves and their place in the family through these rituals older adults in Japan challenge popular attitudes about eldercare Danely s discussion of health and long term care policy and community welfare organizations reveal a complex picture of Japan s aging society

Women and Science, 17th Century to Present Véronique Molinari, 2011-05-25 If women s interest and participation in the advancement of science has a long history the academic study of their contributions is a far more recent phenomenon to be placed in the wake of second wave feminism in the 1970s and the advent of women s studies which have since then given impetus to research on female figures in specific fields or more generally speaking on women s battles to gain access to knowledge education and recognition in the scientific world These studies while providing a useful insight into the contributions of a few more or less well known figures have mostly focused however on the obstacles that women have had to overcome in the field of education and employment or in their quest for acknowledgement by their male peers The aim of this volume is to try and approach the issue from a different and more comprehensive point of view taking into account not only the position of women in science but also the link between women and science through the analysis of various kinds of discourse and representation such as the press poetry fiction biographies and autobiographies or professional journals including that of women themselves The questions of the presentation or re presentation of science by women are thus at the core of this study as well as that of the portrayal and self portrayal of women in the sciences whether in the educational or the professional field A final part examines how women are represented in science fiction which like science itself has traditionally been a field dominated by men Blackwood's Edinburgh magazine ,1841
