A. (Ken) Clements,Nerida F. Ellerton,2017-10-28 In this well illustrated book the authors Sinan Kanbir Ken Clements and Nerida Ellerton tackle a persistent and universal problem in school mathematics why do so many middle school and secondary school students find it difficult to learn algebra well What makes the book important are the unique features which comprise the design research approach that the authors adopted in seeking a solution to the problem. The first unique feature is that the authors offer an overview of the history of school algebra. Despite the fact that algebra has been an important component of secondary school mathematics for more than three centuries, there has never been a comprehensive historical analysis of factors influencing the teaching and learning of that component. The authors identify through historical analysis six purposes of school algebra: a) algebra as a body of knowledge essential to higher mathematical and scientific studies; b) algebra as generalized arithmetic; c) algebra as a prerequisite for entry to higher studies; d) algebra as offering a language and set of procedures for modeling real life problems; e) algebra as an aid to describing structural properties in elementary mathematics; and f) algebra as a study of variables. They also raise the question whether school algebra represents a unidimensional trait. Kanbir Clements and Ellerton offer an unusual hybrid theoretical framework for their intervention study by which seventh grade students significantly improved their elementary algebra knowledge and skills. Their theoretical frame combined Charles Sanders Peirce's triadic signifier-interpretant-signified theory, which is in the realm of semiotics, with Johann Friedrich Herbart's theory of apperception and Ken Clements and Gina Del Campo's theory relating to the need to expand modes of communications in mathematics classrooms so that students engage in receptive and expressive modes. Practicing classroom teachers formed part of the research team. This book appears in Springer's series on the History of Mathematics Education. Not only does it include an important analysis of the history of school algebra, but it also adopts a theoretical frame which relies more on theories from the past than on contemporary theories in the field of mathematics education. The results of the well designed classroom intervention are sufficiently impressive that the study might have created and illuminated a pathway for future researchers to take.

The Southeast Asian Woman Writes Back Grace V. S. Chin, Kathrina Mohd Daud, 2017-12-04. This collection of essays examines how Southeast Asian women writers engage with the grand narratives of nationalism and the modern nation state by exploring the representations of gender identity and nation in the postcolonial literatures of Brunei Darussalam, Malaysia, Singapore, Indonesia, and the Philippines. Bringing to light the selected works of overlooked local women writers and providing new analyses of those produced by internationally known women authors and artists, the essays situate regional literary developments within historicized geopolitical landscapes to offer incisive analyses and readings on how women and the feminine are imagined, represented, and positioned in relation to the Southeast Asian nation. The book, which features both cross-country comparative analyses and country-specific investigations, also considers the ideas of the nation and the state by investigating related ideologies, rhetoric, apparatuses, and discourses, and the ways in which they affect women's bodies, subjectivities, and lived realities in both historical and contemporary Southeast Asian contexts. By considering how these literary expressions critique, contest, or are complicit in nationalist projects and state-mandated agendas, the collection contributes to the overall regional and comparative discourses on gender identity and nation in Southeast Asian studies.

Global Shock, Risks, and Asian Financial Reform Iwan J. Azis, Hyun Song Shin, 2014-12-31 The growth of financial markets has clearly outpaced the development of financial market regulations With growing complexity in the world of finance and the resultant higher frequency of financial crises all eyes have shifted toward the current inad

Communism and Reform in East Asia (RLE Modern East and South East Asia) David S. G. Goodman, 2015-04-10 The West no longer regards communism in East Asia as a threat On the contrary because the communist party states of East Asia appear to be undergoing a process of reform directed primarily at economic modernization it is now regarded as a potential market The West's attitude is reinforced by the recognition of East Asia's economic importance more generally a perception which in itself undoubtedly stimulated reform in the region's communist party states The causes extent and consequences of reform in the East Asian communist party states are the concerns of the contributions to this volume first published in 1988 It includes chapters on the reform process in China North Korea Vietnam and Mongolia as well as examinations of the roles played by both China and the Soviet Union in the Asia Pacific region They demonstrate that a belief in a simple single process of economic and political liberalization brought about by the drive for economic modernization the production imperative is a misleading argument Although the production imperative might act as a stimulus to reform it is neither a sufficient nor even a necessary condition In individual countries the communist party's search for legitimacy a change of leadership or the relationship with the USSR have equally been the spur to reform The drive for economic modernization may even be a consequence of the communist party's desire to reform rather than a cause The absence of a uniform pattern does not detract from the potential consequences of economic and political change These challenge socialist thinking on the nature of collective life ownership and rural society
