an adequate grounding in the technology the materials and the historic origins of the building in order to complete a conservation project successfully Structural Design in Building Conservation deals with design issues and technical choices showing how they are integrated with the planning and architectural outcomes in a conservation project It brings together theory with current conservation technology discussing the possibilities of structural details and strategies in architectural expression Case studies are central to this and these are organised around such themes as the addition of roofs requalification of space strengthening and re use of fabric repristination additions completions stiffness adjustments and the correction of past mistakes The reader is encouraged to examine the technical details of these real projects and explore the possible solutions The philosophy of structural interventions is introduced in the context of conservation theories and practices in various European countries The main types of strengthening repairs and interventions are explained using different building types and the structural nature of the main elements to be strengthened linear structures frames plates and shells is explored in detail Case studies included cover a very wide range of historic types and conversions not only monumental masonry structures like neoclassical buildings major temples churches public buildings and museums but also more utilitarian structures like historic mills early reinforced concrete structures and vaulting types This is essential reading for all students of architectural conservation and practicing architects and engineers who are involved in conservation projects

Bridge Hydraulics Dr Les Hamill,1998-12-03 The design of bridges across rivers and streams is a major component of many civil engineering projects The size of waterways must be kept reasonably small for reasons of economy and yet be large enough to allow floods to pass Bridge Hydraulics is the first book to consider both arched and rectangular waterway openings in detail and to describe all of the main methods of analysis With clear examples and relevant case studies using both laboratory models and full size bridges in the field it is not only a thorough and accessible introduction to bridge hydraulics but also a guide that will enable engineers to produce authoritative analyses and more effective designs

Southern England R. A. Otter,1994 This guide covers from Cornwall to Kent including Somerset and parts of Wiltshire and Surrey It provides an informative look at some of the internationally renowned examples of historic development and engineering skills throughout southern England including such examples as Smeaton s Eddystone Lighthouse

Developments in Structural Form Rowland Mainstone,2013-04-03 In the critically acclaimed first edition of this book Mainstone offered a brilliant and highly original account of the structural developments that have made possible the achievements of architects and bridge builders throughout history In this extensively revised and expanded new edition now available in paperback new insights and a full coverage of recent developments in both design and construction are incorporated The book identifies features that distinguish the forms built by man from those shaped by nature and discusses the physical and other constraints on the choices that can be made It then looks in turn at all the elementary forms arches domes beams slabs and the like which combine into the more complex forms of complete structures and at the different classes of the complete forms themselves The development of each form is traced chronologically but with an emphasis less on the chronology than on the problems that designers have continually faced in trying to serve new ends with limited means or to serve old ones in new ways The book concludes with a chapter on the processes of design showing how the designer's freedom of choice has been widened by a growing understanding of structural behaviour A Biographical Dictionary of Civil Engineers in Great Britain and Ireland: 1500-1830 A. W. Skempton, 2002 This biographical reference work looks specifically at the lives works and careers of those individuals involved in civil engineering whose careers began before 1830

Chalklin, 1998-01-01 Before the modern growth of centralised government the most important unit of administration was the county Counties were run by Justices of the Peace sitting together at Quarter Sessions where as well as trying criminal cases they dealt with all county business In the years between 1650 and 1830 an increasing proportion of their time and resources was taken up in erecting public buildings Building by counties taken together represents a substantial and previously little noticed programme of public works Unlike most other building works in this period where the details of planning building execution and cost are lost county building is well documented allowing us to follow clearly the stages of erection The county building programme reflected changes in society and in the economy apart from being itself an indication of the growing wealth of the period A sizeable part of county budgets was spent on bridges A series of increasingly elaborate bridewells and gaols reflected concerns over employment and crime also reflected in the erection of judges lodgings and court houses the latter being often incorporated in shire halls Rising humanitarian alarm about mental illness led to the building of pauper lunatic asylums after 1800 English Counties and Public Building 1650 1830 is an original and important contribution to both administrative and architectural history Before the modern growth of centralised government the most important unit of administration was the county Counties were run by Justices of the Peace sitting together at Quarter Sessions where as well as trying criminal cases they dealt with all county business In the years between 1650 and 1830 a increasing proportion of their time and resources was taken up in erecting public buildings Building by counties taken together represents a substantial and previously little noticed programme of public works Unlike most other building works in this period where the details of planning building execution and cost are lost county building is well documented allowing us to follow clearly the stages of erection The county building programme reflected changes in society and in the economy apart from being itself an indication of the growing wealth of the period A sizeable part of county budgets was spent on bridges A series of increasingly elaborate bridewells and gaols reflected concerns over employment and crime also reflected in the erection of judges lodgings and court houses the latter being often incorporated in shire halls Rising humanitarian alarm about mental illness led to the building of pauper lunatic asylums after 1800 English Counties and Public Building 1650 1830 is an original and important contribution to both administrative and architectural history
