Architecture in an Age of Uncertainty Benjamin Flowers, 2016-04-15 In the past two decades economic bubbles inflated and architectural spending around the globe reached fever pitch In both well established centers of capital accumulation and far flung locales audacious building projects sprang up while the skyscraper heretofore more commonly associated with American capitalism seemed as if it might pack up and relocate to Dubai and Shanghai Of course much has changed in the past couple of years In formerly free spending Dubai the tallest building in the world is now is named after the president of Abu Dhabi after he stepped in with last minute debt financing In cities across the United States housing prices have nose dived and cleared lots sit ready for commercial redevelopment that likely won t take place for another decade Similar stories are not hard to find in many other nations Architecture firms that swelled in flush days are jettisoning employees at a startling rate In the context of economic instability and its attendant social and political consequences this edited volume brings together scholars critics and architects to discuss the present state of uncertainty in the practice and discipline of architecture The chapters are organized into three main areas of inquiry economics practice and technology Within this larger framework authors explore issues of security ecological design disaster architecture the future of architectural practice and the ethical obligations of the social practice of design In doing so it argues that this period has actually afforded architecture a valuable moment of self reflection where alternative directions for both the theory and practice of architecture might be explored rather than continuing with an approach which was so nurtured by capitalist prosperity and affluence

Greenall, Roberta Marcaccio, 2019-06-17 Architectural research is being redefined in practice Whereas once the value of a piece of research was solely measured by the number of citations it received by fellow academics shifting funding models and new societal concerns are forcing academia to question its structure and this mode of evaluation At the same time a wave of practitioners and new types of institutions such as RMIT in Melbourne and the London School of Architecture LSA have been recasting architectural education and theoretical speculation within practice turning the traditional architectural studio into a learning environment that adopts and adapts academic models and starts to use architectural research as a potential source of business intelligence as a means for self generating future commissions and speculative opportunities that sometimes even shift the terrain of practice This new focus on research in practice is indicative of a profession redefining its relevance and scope This is destabilising the traditional roles of academia and practice by questioning their deep rooted separation and demanding a new definition of the term research with one that is relevant to both parties This issue features contributions from architectural thinkers researchers and a number of practitioners who are recasting academic speculation within their own studios This not only redefines what is meant by research and what forms it takes but also how it creates value for them their clients for the discipline as a whole and for the ultimate users of their designs This helps us to understand how research might be deemed valuable beyond a purely academic context Moreover it raises significant questions in terms of opportunities and risks that arise when research is recast into the less regimented realm of practice Contributors Daniel Davis Lionel Devlieger David Green Harriet Harris Rory Hyde Lara Kinneir James Soane Ziona Strelitz Leon van Schaik John Zhang Featured architects Assemble DSDHA Foster Partners Iredale Pedersen Hook OMA Public Practice and Superflux Handbook for Architectural Administrators Society of Architectural Administrators,1986 A Treatise on Architectural Practice, containing detailed working drawings, specifications, bills of quantities, estimates, tenders, &c. &c. Illustrated with upwards of 60 cuts, with a complete set of working drawings for the carrying out a church, &c. &c. Forming a supplement to Dempsey's Builder's Guide in Materials and Construction George Drysdale DEMPSEY,1857 The American Architect ,1926 Urban Planning and Real Estate Development John Ratcliffe,Michael Stubbs,Mark Shepherd,2004 The second edition of Urban Planning and Real Estate Development deals with the planning and development dimensions of land management The student is guided through the procedural and practical aspects of developing land from the perspective of both regulatory agencies and the developer In this edition the sections addressing dispute resolution urban regeneration and probity have been revised and updated New material addressing the private finance initiative sustainable development urban regeneration the renaissance in urban living and the experience economy has been added This textbook is intended for undergraduate and postgraduate students and explains the key dimensions of property development and town planning It should be of interest to students of real estate estate management land management and land economy Architect's Pocket Book of Modern Management and Practice Ben Vickery,2024-12-17 This book is an easily digestible guide to the management and practice knowledge needed to establish and run an architectural practice It is of particular interest to those starting out in the profession and to students whilst also being useful to architects more widely who need succinct information to assist them in the daily management of their work The book sits beside the Architect's Legal Pocket Book providing legal information and the Architect's Pocket Book providing guidance in design It covers all the main management and practice topics relevant to the running of an architectural business including setting up the company the profession project management fees office management financial management and teamwork It also looks at the state of the construction industry and the architectural profession today new forms of practice and how the profession is changing The book is interweaved with pearls of wisdom and experience and reflections from architects bringing the topics to life and aiding the reader's understanding Incorporating Architects Aaron Cayer,2025-06-03 By the end of the twentieth century US architecture and engineering firms held more capital than entire countries employed more people than were housed in most cities and rented offices in more nations than comprised the UN. Within them architects were designing not single buildings but urban systems including the multinational infrastructures, legal codes and financial mechanisms on which those systems came to depend. However, despite the extraordinary power of these architects, their histories remain shrouded in myth and concealed by design. This forensic analysis traces a history of architects at one such firm, AECOM, as they assembled their own multinational corporation and embedded themselves in the operations of American empire after World War II, shielding themselves from the instabilities of a postwar political economy. Incorporating Architects reveals how architects through their businesses more than their drawings or buildings modulated the political economy, gripped the reins of their profession and produced the global injustices that define our neoliberal present.
