Grove, 1989-12-15 Science holds a central role in the modern world yet its complex interrelationships with nature technology and politics are often misunderstood or seen from a false perspective In a series of essays that make extensive use of original work by sociologists historians and philosophers of science J W Grove explores the roles and relationships of science in modern technological society Modern Science can be viewed from four related perspectives It is an expression of human curiosity a passion to understand the natural world what it is made of how it is put together and how it works It is a body of practice a set of ways of finding out that distinguish it from other realms of inquiry It is a profession a body of men and women owing allegiance to the pursuit of knowledge and for those people a career And it is a prescriptive enterprise in that the increase of scientific understanding makes it possible to put nature to use in new kinds of technology Each of these aspects of science is today the focus of critical scrutiny and often outright hostility With many examples Grove exposes the threats to science today its identification with technology its subordination to the state the false claims made in its name and the popular intellectual forces that seek to denigrate it as a source of human understanding and progress     The Future of Science United States. Congress. House. Committee on Science and Technology. Task Force on Science Policy,1986     The Structure of Society Julián Marías,1987     Thirty Years Into Yesterday J. Jefferson Reid,Stephanie Michelle Whittlesey,2005-01-01 Describes the University of Arizona Archaeological Field School at Grasshopper Pueblo in northern Arizona its excavation of a five hundred room Mogollon Pueblo occupied during the 1300s AD and the intellectual debates the major project engendered
