Guide to Planning Ecological Townships, A: Sustainability Performance Indicators and Planning Strategies

Lai-Choo Malone-Lee, Chye Kiang Heng, Ivan Nasution, Manju Baisoya Pundir, 2023-09-30 Population pressures and urbanization together with the challenges of sustainable development have in recent decades led to a proliferation of township developments which are termed eco cities. These townships seek to attain a wide range of social, economic and environmental sustainability goals. They adopt various quantitative targets or key performance indicators (KPIs) in a bid to substantiate sustainability claims in a number of common themes for example energy efficiency, water consumption reduction, public transport planning, waste management, carbon reduction strategies and biodiversity conservation. They apply ecological principles to guide urban planning design and management. Given that there are no universal standards, different townships have adopted their own criteria and interpretation on what is to be achieved. This book presents a systematic compilation of sustainability indicators adopted in selected township case studies with a focus on relatively high density projects in Asia. Using a methodical mode of enquiry, it sets forth a systematic approach towards profiling sustainability performance. In the process, it derives a framework of sustainability domains, performance targets and planning standards which operationalises the concept of sustainability and lends tangible dimensions to its evaluation. The indicator framework demonstrates the contemporary sustainability considerations that have been embraced by the case studies. They illustrate elements of compact development, social diversity, resource efficiency, economic sufficiency and climate resilience. Planners, designers, developers and their consultants can use the indicator framework to guide project implementation and performance assessment. The methodological structuring of planning parameters lays the foundation for an evolved paradigm in ecological township planning and a sharpened way of defining the future of human settlements. Think global, certify local. ### Evaluation of Urban Ecological Security and Measurement of Urban Ecological Resilience

Xueru Zhang, Wei Song, Hualin Xie, Jinmei Lu, 2024-05-29 Since the middle of the last century, rapid population growth and urbanization have led to the encroachment of a large number of natural spaces, resulting in a series of ecological security issues such as environmental pollution, resource depletion and habitat destruction, which have severely challenged global sustainable development. Urban ecological security is an important barrier to urban residents' production and life, the foundation and core of national or regional ecological security, and it is of great significance to promote green development and harmonious coexistence between humans and nature. With global warming, frequent natural disasters and other multifactorial threats the issue of ecological security in cities as centers of the settlement have become a focus of international attention. However, cities are complex systems with social, economic, and natural conditions coupled with each other. Under the overlapping of many factors, the basic problems such as the mechanism of urban development on ecological security have not been fully explained, and there is also a lack of quantitative assessment methods corresponding to urban ecological conditions, let alone simulation and prediction.

Biomimicry and Sustainable Building Performance Olusegun Aanuoluwapo Oguntona, Clinton Ohi Aigbavboa, 2024-02-01

This book on biomimicry assessment tools studies the concepts of sustainability, sustainable construction practices, and the evaluation categories that constitute a sustainability assessment tool. By exploring and drawing lessons from biomimicry principles, the book provides a nature-inspired assessment tool to aid and guide the sustainable transformation of the built environment. The book encapsulates the attributes of the conceptualised biomimicry assessment tool, which is aimed at helping practitioners, regulatory bodies, and governmental and non-governmental agencies in greening the built environment. Owing to the dire need for country-specific and tailor-made tools that address developing countries' needs, this book serves as a practical reference and theoretical springboard for the development of sustainability assessment tools for the built environment. Furthermore, the book serves as a guide in navigating the path towards achieving the greening agendas of the built environment and other sectors and seeks to align the new biomimicry assessment tool with the UN Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). It is important reading for academics, professionals, and advanced students in the built environment, engineering, and sustainable development.
