Sound is not the same as spelling. For example, the word is finishes with the letter 's' but the sound is /z/.

When writing the sound of a word (its phonetic transcription), always put lines like these (/) on either side of the word.

/pet/ = pet

Stress is shown with marks like these ' ' .

Show the primary stress in a word. For example, /ˈɡɑːdn/ garden

Show the secondary stress. For example, /ˈtelɪˈvɪʒən/ television

INTRODUCTION TO OUTCOMES VOCABULARY BUILDER

Learning vocabulary in collocations and phrases will develop your fluency and doing a little revision regularly is the best way to learn vocabulary. That's what the Outcomes Vocabulary Builder (OVB) will help you with.

It has been written to provide you with the important vocabulary in the Student's Book and to show you how these words are commonly used. It does not include every word which you should know from lower levels such as during or unusual words which you probably don't need to remember at this level.

What each entry contains

- Each entry has a short explanation of the word's meaning and often gives information on other forms or opposites.
- There is then a list of up to six typical collocations and phrases that the word is used with.
- Regular language boxes provide extra information on the items found in each unit.

How the OVB is organised

It is organised to make it quick and easy to use in class and to make at home.

- Each unit in the OVB contains the most important new words from exercises, texts and listening in the unit of the Student's Book.
- The units are then divided according to each double page of the Student's Book and the words within those pages are written in alphabetical order.
- At the end of each unit there are revision tasks.
- There is an answer key at the back of the book.

Ways you can use the OVB

- Read the word list before you study the unit in the book.
- Translate all the words you don't know based on the explanation. Check the collocations for each word. Do they make sense? Are any different to your language?
- In class, if you have forgotten a word, look it up again. Write out the collocation list and add one of your own.
- Cover words in the list and say or write phrases with the word. Then compare with the collocation list.
- Choose five to ten words from the list to learn each day.
- Put eight new words in a story using the collocations listed.
- On the exercises at the end of each unit, some time after you've done it in class. Then check the answers in the key.
- Write a list of the words you find difficult to remember and write sentences using the words.
