Implementation guide for vaccination of health workers World Health Organization, 2022-06-30 This implementation guidance summarizes the latest recommendations and programmatic considerations for the vaccination of health workers. It is useful for countries that do not yet have policies and programmes in place as well as for those seeking to expand or improve their existing health worker vaccination activities. This guide outlines key considerations for developing a policy framework for health worker vaccination, the importance of integrating health worker vaccination into existing national OHS policies and programmes as well as into the management practices of health facilities, and how health worker vaccination strategies and practices can be implemented, communicated, delivered, and monitored. It is intended for policy decision makers in Ministries of Health, MOHs, and ministries of employment and labour, immunization managers, and managers of health facilities, professional associations of various groups of health workers, and organizations of workers and employers in the health sector.

Mathematical and statistical modeling of infection and transmission dynamics of viral diseases Pierre Magal, Jacques Demongeot, Olumide Babatope Longe, 2023-10-30 Vaccine Development and Manufacturing Emily P. Wen, Ronald Ellis, Narahari S. Pujar, 2014-11-17 Vaccine Manufacturing and Production is an invaluable reference on how to produce a vaccine from beginning to end, addressing all classes of vaccines from a processing, production, and regulatory viewpoint. It will provide comprehensive information on the various fields involved in the production of vaccines, from fermentation, purification, formulation, to regulatory filing and facility designs. In recent years, there have been tremendous advances in all aspects of vaccine manufacturing. Improved technology and growth media have been developed for the production of cell culture with high cell density or fermentation. Vaccine Manufacturing and Production will serve as a reference on all aspects of vaccine production by providing an in-depth description of the available technologies for making different types of vaccines and the current thinking in facility designs and supply issues. This book will provide insight to the issues scientists face when producing a vaccine, the steps that are involved, and will serve as a reference tool regarding state-of-the-art vaccine manufacturing technologies and facility set-up. Highlights include: Comprehensive coverage of vaccine production from a process point of view, fermentation to purification to formulation; developments from a production point of view, from facility design to manufacturing and from a regulatory point of view; requirements from government agencies; Authors from different major pharmaceutical and biotechnology companies; Describes the challenges and issues involved in vaccine production and manufacturing of the different classes of vaccines, an area not covered by other books currently on the market.

Plant-produced Microbial Vaccines Alexander V. Karasev, 2009-04-29 In recent years, plants have been increasingly explored for production of biomedicines and vaccine components. The two main advantages of plant systems are low cost and a greater potential for scalability as compared to microbial or animal systems. An additional advantage from the public health point of view is high safety compared to animal systems which is important for vaccine production there are no known plant pathogens capable of replicating in animals and in humans in particular A particular antigen or a protein has to be expressed in a plant using one of many available platforms this antigen protein subsequently needs to be purified or processed and later formulated into a vaccine or a therapeutic these need to be delivered to a human or animal body via an appropriate route Naturally all these vaccines and therapeutics must be subjected to regulatory approvals prior to their use Thus the challenge is to adapt plant based platforms for production of cost efficient biomedical products that can be approved by FDA for use as vaccine components or therapeutics which will be competitive against existing vaccines and drugs This volume attempts to address the entire spectrum of challenges facing the nascent field of plant based biomedical products from the selection of an appropriate production platform to specific methods of downstream processing and regulatory approval issues
