Journal of Research of the National Institute of Standards and Technology ,1998 Druggists' Circular and Chemical Gazette ,1892 Includes Red book price list section title varies slightly issued semiannually 1897 1906 The Neurocognition of Language Production Albert

Costa, Kristof Strijkers, 2012-06-01 Over the last decades neuroscience has passed beyond mere phrenology and erpology and has become an important tool for investigating the spatial temporal and functional brain dynamics underlying human behavior In this Special Issue we would like to give a broad overview of recent significant contributions that neuroscientific research has provided to one of the most practiced psychomotor skills unique to humans namely language production Physiological studies in language production have not been as extensive compared to many other areas of human cognition and have just currently begun to generate important evidence for uncovering the cognitive mechanisms behind our ability to produce fast and efficient speech Nonetheless these findings have already demonstrated their scientific value and interest in neuroscientific approaches for studying language production is increasing exponentially Therefore we believe that a topic specially dedicated to neurocognitive advances in language production is not just in its place but even necessary Rather than focusing on a specific topic the idea is to cover many of the important aspects involved in producing speech semantics word retrieval syntax phonology motor preparation and control gathered from various paradigms e g object naming word naming etc and various populations monolinguals bilinguals patients The goal is to provide readers with a comprehensive overview of the general questions being addressed in neuroscientific studies on language production where the research stands how these findings are of importance for understanding and constraining cognitive models and which future directions have to be taken To this end we will invite experts in the field who have made significant contributions in the last several years to confer an important topic of language production critically discuss neuroscientific findings on this topic relate it to the actual behavior and cognitive models and importantly though novel questions which can be derived from their results and facilitate future research in the field Hereby we hope this Research Topic will be a source of reference both for experts as novices who wish to explore the various mental operations involved in language production from a neurocognitive point of view

Technical Abstract Bulletin ,1981 Biomedical Technology & Human Factors Engineering ,1983 Probing auditory scene analysis Elyse S Sussman, Susan Denham, Susann Deike, 2015-02-11 In natural environments the auditory system is typically confronted with a mixture of sounds originating from different sound sources As sounds spread over time the auditory system has to continuously decompose competing sounds into distinct meaningful auditory objects or auditory streams referring to certain sound sources This decomposition work which was termed by Albert Bregman as Auditory scene analysis ASA involves two kinds of grouping to be done Grouping based on simultaneous cues such as harmonicity and on sequential cues such as similarity in acoustic features over time Understanding how the brain solves these tasks is a fundamental challenge facing auditory scientist In recent years the topic of ASA was broadly investigated in different fields of auditory research including a wide range of methods studies in different species and modeling Despite the advance in understanding ASA it still proves to be a major challenge for auditory research This includes verifying whether experimental findings are transferable to more realistic auditory scenes A central approach in understanding ASA is the use of certain stimulus parameters that produce an ambiguous percept The advantage of such an approach is that different perceptual organizations can be studied without varying physical stimulus parameters Additionally the perception of ambiguous stimuli can be volitionally controlled by intention or task By using this one can mirror real hearing situations where listeners intent to identify and to localize auditory sources Recently it was also found that in classical auditory streaming sequences perceptual ambiguity was not restricted to but was observed over a broad range of stimulus parameters The proposed Research Topic pursues to bring together scientist in the different fields of auditory research whose work addresses the issue of perceptual ambiguity Researchers were welcome to contribute experimental reports computational modeling and reviews that consider auditory ambiguity in its modality specific characteristics as well as in comparison to visual ambiguous figures The overall goal of contributions was to consider the experimental findings from the perspective of real auditory scenes In a broader sense the Research Topic was open for contributions which are related to the issue of active listening in complex scenes

The American Bookseller ,1884 The Impact of Sensory, Linguistic and Social Deprivation on Cognition

Matthew Dye,Olivier Pascalis,2017-12-21 Early experience plays a crucial role in determining the trajectory of cognitive development For example early sensory deprivation is known to induce neural reorganization by way of adaptation to the altered sensory experience Neville and Bavelier s compensatory theory hypothesizes that loss of one sense may bring about a sensory enhancement in the remaining modalities Sensory deprivation will however also impact the age of emergence or the speed of acquisition of cognitive abilities that depend upon sensory inputs Understanding how a child s early environment shapes their cognition is not only of theoretical interest It is essential for the development of early intervention programs that address not just the early deprivation itself but also the cognitive sequelae of such deprivation The articles in this e book all address different aspects of deprivation sensory linguistic and social and explore the impacts of such deprivation on a wide range of cognitive outcomes In reading these contributions it is important to note that sensory linguistic and social deprivation are not independent factors in human experience For example a child born deaf into a hearing family is likely to experience delays in exposure to natural language with subsequent limits on their linguistic competence having an effect on social interactions and inclusion a child raised in environments where social interaction is highly limited is also likely to experience reductions in the quantity and quality of linguistic inputs Future work will need to carefully examine the complex interactions between the sensory linguistic and social environments of children raised in atypical or impoverished environments
