Anaemia - A state where red blood cells are scarce in the blood, in haemoglobin, or in total volume.

Blood Plasma - The faint yellow liquid portion of whole blood that is made of water and its dissolved constituents including, sugars, lipids, metabolic waste products, amino acids, hormones, and vitamins.

Erythrocytes (Red Blood Cells) - Any of the haemoglobin-holding cells that bring oxygen to the tissues and are responsible for the red colour of vertebrate blood.

Haematocrit - The percent of the volume of whole blood that is made of red blood cells as determined by separation of red blood cells from the plasma usually by centrifugation.

Leukocytes (White Blood Cell) - Any of the blood cells that are colourless, lack haemoglobin, contain a nucleus, and include the lymphocytes, monocytes, neutrophils, eosinophils, and basophils.

Sickle Cell Disease - Individuals who are homozygous for the gene controlling haemoglobin S. The disease is characterized by the destruction of red blood cells and by episodic blocking of blood vessels by the adherence of sickle cells to the vascular endothelium.

Thrombocytes (Platelets) - A minute colourless anucleate disklike body of mammalian blood that assists in blood clotting by adhering to other platelets and to damaged epithelium.

Amino Acid - An organic monomer which serves a purpose as a building block for proteins.

Anticodon - A set of three nucleotide bases in transfer RNA that identifies the amino acid carried and binds to a complementary codon in messenger RNA during protein synthesis at a ribosome.

Codon - A three-nucleotide sequence of DNA or mRNA that identifies a certain amino acid or termination signal, the basic unit of the genetic code.

Hydrophilic - Having an affinity for water.

Examination of the U.S. Air Force's Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics (STEM) Workforce Needs in the Future and Its Strategy to Meet Those Needs National Research Council, Division on Engineering and Physical Sciences, Air Force Studies Board, Committee on Examination of the U.S. Air Force's Science, Technology, Engineering, and Mathematics (STEM) Workforce Needs in the Future and Its Strategy to Meet Those Needs, 2010-11-09 The Air Force requires technical skills and expertise across the entire range of activities and processes associated with the development, fielding, and employment of air space and cyber operational capabilities. The growing complexity of both traditional and emerging missions is placing new demands on education, training, career development, system acquisition, platform sustainment, and development of operational systems. While in the past the Air Force's technologically intensive mission has been highly attractive to individuals educated in science, technology, engineering, and mathematics, STEM disciplines face reductions in ongoing military operations and budget pressures are creating new challenges for attracting and managing personnel with the needed technical skills. Assessments of recent development and acquisition process failures have identified a loss of technical competence within the Air Force that is in-house or organic competence as opposed to contractor support as an underlying problem. These challenges come at a time of increased competition for technical graduates who are U.S. citizens in an aging industry and government workforce and consolidations of the industrial base that supports military systems. In response to a request from the Deputy Assistant Secretary of the Air Force for Science, Technology, and Engineering, the National Research Council conducted five fact-finding meetings at which senior Air Force commanders in the science and engineering acquisition, test operations, and logistics domains provided assessments of the adequacy of the current workforce in terms of quality and quantity.

Building Capacity for Teaching Engineering in K-12 Education National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, National Academy of Engineering, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Board on Science Education, Committee on Educator Capacity Building in K-12 Engineering Education, 2020-04-13 Engineering education is emerging as an important component of U.S. K-12 education. Across the country, students in classrooms and after and out of school programs are participating in hands-on, problem-focused learning activities using the engineering design process. These experiences can be engaging, support learning in other areas such as science and mathematics, and provide a window into the important role of engineering in society. As the landscape of K-12 engineering education continues to grow and evolve, educators, administrators, and policy makers should consider the capacity of the U.S. education system to meet current and anticipated needs for K-12 teachers of engineering. Building Capacity for Teaching Engineering in K-12 Education reviews existing curricula and programs as well as related research to understand current and anticipated future needs for engineering-literate K-12 educators in the United States and determine how these needs might be addressed. Key topics in this report include the preparation of K-12 engineering educators, professional pathways for

K 12 engineering educators and the role of higher education in preparing engineering educators This report proposes steps that stakeholders including professional development providers postsecondary preservice education programs postsecondary engineering and engineering technology programs formal and informal educator credentialing organizations and the education and learning sciences research communities might take to increase the number skill level and confidence of K 12 teachers of engineering in the United States Journal of Technology Education ,2014 Protecting America's Competitive Edge Act (S. 2198) United States. Standards-Based Technology and Engineering Education Scott R. Bartholomew,Marie Hoepfl,P. John Williams,2023-11-01 This book brings together authors from around the world to discuss the Standards for Technological and Engineering Literacy The Role of Technology and Engineering in STEM Education STEL released in July 2020 by the International Technology and Engineering Educators Association ITEEA The various chapters examine and elaborate on how educators must understand the structure of the standards used and their alignment with educational programs at specific levels and contexts both in the context of the USA and internationally It also showcases case studies analyzing the use of standards in their various contexts from a number of countries which have either adapted STEL or which have national Standards in Technology Education The STEL represents a major update to the content standards that has guided the field of technology education and later technology and engineering education in the USA since 2000 In contrast to previous standards STEL presents a substantial reduction in the number of standards and associated benchmarks and the benchmarks have been operationalized to identify the key knowledge skills and dispositions associated with each standard It also emphasizes a focus on core standards that should allow for deeper levels of understanding and engagement on the part of students who in comprehensive educational programs will continue to revisit these core standards in increasingly sophisticated ways as they progress from Pre K through Grade 12

The Handbook of Secondary Gifted Education Felicia A. Dixon,Sidney M.
