Boeing 737 Electrical System Manual:

Aircraft Systems Facundo Conforti, Competition between the main aircraft manufacturers is becoming fiercer every day. When a manufacturer develops an improvement in one of the systems of its aircraft the competition is attentive to improving those developments throughout its fleet. The truth is that aircraft systems respond to the same principle of operation and large manufacturers know it. There are things that simply can't be improved because they are almost perfect. In these cases it is a matter of changing the appearance of aircraft systems to offer a different product to the market. In this work you will know the principle of operation of all the systems of a commercial aircraft and of course their different appearances depending on each of the main manufacturers of commercial aircraft in the world: Airbus and Boeing. A work that invites you to learn how the main systems of two of the world's flying commercial aircraft, the fabulous Airbus 320 and the magnificent Boeing B737, work. Learning how an airplane's systems work is just the beginning; the next step is this work to compare the systems between these two incredible aircraft. At the end of this reading you will know the working principle of the systems of an A320 and a B737 perfectly.

Aerodynamic Design of Transport Aircraft Ed Obert, 2009. The origin of Aerodynamic Design of Transport Aircraft stems from the time when the author was appointed part-time professor in the Aerospace Faculty of Delft University of Technology. At the time his main activities were those of leading the departments of Aerodynamics Performance and Preliminary Design at Fokker Aircraft Company. The groundwork for this book started in 1987 as a series of lecture notes consisting mainly of pictorial material with a minimum of English explanatory text. After the demise of Fokker in 1996, one feared that interest in aeronautical engineering would strongly diminish. As a result of this the course was discontinued and the relationship between the author and the faculty came to an end. Two years later the situation was reappraised and the interest in aeronautical engineering remained, so the course was reinstated with a former Fokker colleague, Ronald Slingerland, as lecturer. The lecture notes from these courses form the foundation of this publication.

AIR CRASH INVESTIGATIONS, PILOT ERROR? The Crash of Ethiopian Airlines Flight 409 Hans Griffioen, editor, 2012-04. On 25 January 2010 at 00:41:30 UTC Ethiopian Airlines flight ET 409, a Boeing 737-800 on its way from Beirut to Addis Ababa, crashed just after take-off from Rafic Hariri International Airport in Beirut, Lebanon, into the Mediterranean Sea about 5 NM South West of Beirut International Airport. All 90 persons on board were killed in the accident. The investigation concluded that the probable causes of the accident were pilot errors due to loss of situational awareness. Ethiopian Airlines refutes this conclusion. Other factors that could have led to probable causes are the increased workload and stress levels that have most likely led to the captain reaching a situation of loss of situational awareness similar to a subtle incapacitation and the FO's failure to recognize it or to intervene accordingly. Ethiopian Airlines refutes the investigation. According to the airline, the final report was biased, lacking evidence, incomplete, and did not present the full account of the accident.
