Delang, Yi Hang Yu, 2015-06-26 Dissatisfaction with the Gross Domestic Product GDP as an indicator of a country's development or a population's wellbeing led to the development of the Genuine Progress Indicator GPI The GPI is an aggregate index of over 20 economic social and environmental indicators and accounts for both the welfare benefits of economic growth and the social and environmental costs which accompany that economic growth The result is better information about the level of welfare or well being of a country's population This book measures the GPI of Hong Kong and Singapore from 1968 to 2010 It finds that for both countries economic output as measured by the GDP has grown more than welfare as measured by the GPI but important differences are also found In Hong Kong the GPI has grown for the whole period under consideration while in Singapore the GPI has stalled from 1993 This is in line with most countries and is explained by the threshold hypothesis which states that beyond a certain level of economic development the benefits of further economic growth are outweighed by even higher environmental and social costs The book argues that the growth of Hong Kong's GPI is due to its favourable relationship with

China and in particular its ability to export low wage jobs and polluting industries rather than successful domestic policies A stalling or shrinking GPI calls for alternative policies than the growth economy promoted by neoclassical economists and the book explores an alternative model that of the Steady State Economy SSE Public Policy Evaluation and Analysis Samir Amine,2024-10-15 This edited volume examines how some OECD countries have adapted to new challenges in the labor market by evaluating and analyzing public programs implemented before during and after Covid 19 To gain a comprehensive understanding the volume adopts a multidisciplinary approach with chapters contributed by authors from diverse disciplines and academic and professional backgrounds An Assessment of CETA United States.
