

ARCHITECTURAL ILLUSTRATION IN WATERCOLOR

A detailed watercolor illustration of a large, open architectural space, possibly a train station or a grand hall. The structure features a high, vaulted ceiling made of a grid of glass panels supported by a network of steel beams. The walls are light-colored and punctuated by numerous arched windows of varying sizes, some of which are filled with blue-tinted glass. In the foreground, several green trees with dense foliage are planted in a row. Small, dark figures of people are scattered throughout the space, providing a sense of scale to the vast architecture. The overall style is soft and painterly, characteristic of watercolor.
