Bell, 2003-11-06 Incorporates memoir in the context of philosophical and political theory and argument Camus and Sartre Ronald Aronson, 2004-01-03 Until now it has been impossible to read the full story of the relationship between Albert Camus and Jean Paul Sartre Their dramatic rupture at the height of the Cold War like that conflict itself demanded those caught in its wake to take sides rather than to appreciate its tragic complexity Now using newly available sources Ronald Aronson offers the first book length account of the twentieth century's most famous friendship and its end Albert Camus and Jean Paul Sartre first met in 1943 during the German occupation of France The two became fast friends Intellectual as well as political allies they grew famous overnight after Paris was liberated As playwrights novelists philosophers journalists and editors the two seemed to be everywhere and in command of every medium in post war France East West tensions would put a strain on their friendship however as they evolved in opposing directions and began to disagree over philosophy the responsibilities of intellectuals and what sorts of political changes were necessary or possible As Camus then Sartre adopted the mantle of public spokesperson for his side a historic showdown seemed inevitable Sartre embraced violence as a path to change and Camus sharply opposed it leading to a bitter and very public falling out in 1952 They never spoke again although they continued to disagree in code until Camus's death in 1960 In a remarkably nuanced and balanced account Aronson chronicles this riveting story while demonstrating how Camus and Sartre developed first in connection with and then against each other each keeping the other in his sights long after their break Combining biography and intellectual history philosophical and political passion Camus and Sartre will fascinate anyone interested in these great writers or the world historical issues that tore them apart The Human Predicament in Hardy's Novels Jagdish Chandra Dave, 2016-02-25
