Touching Architecture Anthony Brand, 2022-12-30 This book is about perception emotion and affect in architecture how and why we feel the way that we do and the ways in which our surroundings and bodies contribute to this Our experience of architecture is an embodied one with all our senses acting in concert as we move through time and space The book picks up where much of the critique of architectural aestheticism at the end of the twentieth century left off illustrating the limitations and potential consequences of attending to architecture as the visually biased practice which has steadily become the status quo within both industry and education It draws upon interdisciplinary research to elucidate the reasons why this is counter productive to the creation of meaningful places and to articulate the embodied richness of our touching encounters A felt phenomenology is introduced as a more than visual alternative capable of sustaining our physical emotional and psychological well being By recognising the reciprocal and participatory relationship that exists between atmospheric affect and our phenomenological bodies we begin to appreciate the manifold ways in which we touch and are touched by our built environment As such Touching Architecture will appeal to those with an interest in architectural history and theory as well as those interested in the topic of atmospheres affect and embodied perception

Atmospheric Violence grapples with the afterlife of environmental disasters and armed conflict and examines how people attempt to flourish despite and alongside continuing violence Departing from conventional approaches to the study of disaster and conflict that have dominated academic studies of Kashmir Omer Aijazi's ethnography of life in the borderlands instead explores possibilities for imagining life otherwise in an environment where violence is everywhere or atmospheric Drawing on extensive fieldwork in the portion of Kashmir under Pakistan's control and its surrounding mountainscapes the book takes us to two remote mountainous valleys that have been shaped by recurring environmental disasters as well as by the landscape of no go zones army barracks and security checkpoints of the contested India Pakistan border Through a series of interconnected scenes from the lives of five protagonists all of whom are precariously situated within their families or societies and rarely enjoy the expected protections of state or community Aijazi reveals the movements flows and intimacies sustained by a landscape that enables alternative modes of life Blurring the distinctions between story theory and activism he explores what emerges when theory becomes a project of seeing and feeling from the non normative standpoint of those who like the book's protagonists do not subscribe to the rules by which most others have come to know the world Bringing the critical study of disaster into conversation with a radical humanist anthropology and the capaciousness of affect theory held accountable to Black studies and Indigenous studies Aijazi offers a decolonial approach to disaster studies centering not on trauma and rupture but rather on repair the social labor through which communities living with disaster refuse the conditions of death imposed upon them and create viable lives for themselves even amidst constant diminishment and world annihilation

Spatial Justice Andreas Philippopoulos-Mihalopoulos, 2014-10-30 There can be no justice that is not spatial Against a recent tendency to despatialise law matter bodies and even space itself this book insists on spatialising them arguing that there can be neither law nor justice that are not articulated through and in space Spatial Justice presents a new theory and a radical application of the material connection between space in the geographical as well as sociological and philosophical sense and the law in the broadest sense that includes written and oral law but also embodied social and political norms More specifically it argues that spatial justice is the struggle of various bodies human natural non organic technological to occupy a certain space at a certain time Seen in this way spatial justice is the most radical offspring of the spatial turn since as this book demonstrates spatial justice can be found in the core of most contemporary legal and political issues issues such as geopolitical conflicts environmental issues animality colonisation droning the cyberspace and so on In order to argue this the book employs the lawscape as the tautology between law and space and the concept of atmosphere in its geological political aesthetic legal and biological dimension Written by a leading theorist in the area Spatial Justice Body Lawscape Atmosphere forges a new interdisciplinary understanding of space and law while offering a fresh approach to current geopolitical spatiolegal and ecological issues

Urban Commons Christian Borch, Martin Kornberger, 2015-04-10 This book rethinks the city by examining its various forms of collectivity their atmospheres modes of exclusion and self organization as well as how they are governed on the basis of a critical discussion of the notion of urban commons The idea of the commons has received surprisingly little attention in urban theory although the city may well be conceived as a shared resource Urban Commons Rethinking the City offers an attempt to reconsider what a city might be by studying how the notion of the commons opens up new understandings of urban collectivities addressing a range of questions about urban diversity urban governance urban belonging urban sexuality urban subcultures and urban poverty but also by discussing in more methodological terms how one might study the urban commons In these respects the rethinking of the city undertaken in this book has a critical dimension as the notion of the commons delivers new insights about how collective urban life is formed and governed
