

Molecular Genetics (Chapter 10)

DNA = Deoxyribonucleic Acid DNA is the blueprint for who we are and for who we have become

STRUCTURE

- The structure of DNA, its double helix shape, was discovered by Watson and Crick.
- DNA is a nucleic acid (polymer) made from nucleotides (the monomers of nucleic acids).
- Each nucleotide is made of a phosphate, a sugar, and a base. The base is bonded to the sugar which is bonded to phosphates. The sugars and phosphates bond together (phosphodiester bond) in an alternating pattern that forms the backbone of DNA.
- The nucleotides of DNA contain 4 bases, the purines (double-rings) are Adenine and Guanine and the pyrimidines (single-rings) are Cytosine and Thymine. These nucleotides combine to form a strand of DNA.
- DNA is a double stranded molecule. The strands are held together by hydrogen bonds between the bases.
- Adenine bonds with Thymine and is held by two hydrogen bonds, and Cytosine bonds with Guanine and is held together by three hydrogen bonds. It is this difference in bond number and thus strength that accounts for the helical shape.
- Due to the phosphates in the DNA strand a DNA molecule of DNA has a slightly negative charge.

Chromosome Composition Chromosomes are made up of DNA and protein. The DNA is coiled around the proteins (histones) and then folded over itself.

DNA Replication DNA replication is semi-conservative. This means that each new DNA molecule has half of the original. In order to begin replication, DNA is unwound (unzipped) by DNA helicase. Helix-destabilizing proteins keep the helix in the unzipped position until the complementary bases are added. DNA Polymerase catalyzes the linking-together of nucleotide subunits in a 5' to 3' direction as always.

Termination of the algorithm

- Occurs in the cytoplasm/ribosomes
- This is where tRNA anticodons match up with the complementary mRNA codons

^aFor more details see Table 1.

- This is where the DNA code is copied (transcribed) into mRNA codon language.
- In a general sense, transcription is the process of copying the specific needed recipe from the huge cookbook, trimming off all the excess and sending out to be made.
- happens within the nucleus, then the mRNA travels to the cytoplasm.
- DNA base triplet code (gene) must be copied into
