Contextualising Narrative Inquiry Sheila Trahar, 2013-04-02 Narrative inquiry is growing in popularity as a research methodology in the social sciences medicine and the humanities In narrative inquiry the transparency of interactions between researcher and research participants together with rich contextual descriptions help to shape and structure research texts rendering them engaging and readable Contextualising Narrative Inquiry argues that all researchers should foreground the importance of the context in which research takes place and develop methodological approaches that are grounded in their local contexts To do so they need to pay attention to how knowledge is constructed shared and understood in those contexts This is particularly important when contexts have been subjugated historically through colonialism and when local indigenous ways of knowing have been ignored or dismissed The contributors to this edited collection have all used narrative inquiry for a range of topics and in a range of contexts including Leadership styles of Asian women The Deaf community in the UK Voluntary celibacy in Malta Administrators in Ghanaian higher education Multiculturalism in primary education in Cyprus Teacher identities in Hong Kong The reflective practitioner in higher education in Malaysia The diversity of the topics illuminates the potential for narrative inquiry to be used to investigate a broad range of issues in many contexts by people with a wide range of backgrounds A common thread throughout is a reflexive discussion of how each contributor used narrative inquiry as a methodological approach highlighting not only its affordances but also the complexities of using it in specific cultural social and historical contexts signifying capable of registering complex theological ideas while pursuing the authentic aims of documentary filmmaking Robert Beckford marries the concepts of theology as visual practice and theology as political engagement to develop a new mode of documentary filmmaking that embeds emancipation from oppression in its aesthetic In various documentaries made for Channel 4 and the BBC Beckford narrates the complicit relationship of Christianity with European expansion slavery and colonialism as a historic manifestation of evil In light of the cannibalistic practices of colonialism that devoured black life and the church's role in the subjugation and theological legitimization of black bodies Beckford characterises this form of historic Christian faith as colonial Christianity and its malevolent or occult practices as a form of bewitchment that must be exorcised He identifies and exorcises the evil practices of colonialism and their present impact upon African Caribbean Christian communities in Britain in films such as Britain's Slave Trade and Empire Pays Back through a deliberate process of encoding decoding The emancipatory impact of this form of documentary filmmaking is demonstrated by its ability to bring issues such as reparations to the public square for debate and its capacity to change a corporation's trade policies for the good of Africans
