Repairing Play Aaron Trammell, 2023-02-07 A provocative study that reconsiders our notion of play and how its deceptively wholesome image has harmed and erased people of color Contemporary theorists present play as something wholly constructive and positive But this broken definition is drawn from a White European philosophical tradition that ignores the fact that play can and often does hurt In fact this narrow understanding of play has been complicit in the systemic erasure of Black Indigenous and People of Color BIPOC from the domain of leisure In this book Aaron Trammell proposes a corrective a radical reconsideration of play that expands its definition to include BIPOC suffering subjugation and taboo topics such as torture As he challenges and decolonizes White European thought Trammell maps possible ways to reconcile existing theories with the fact that play is often hurtful and toxic Trammell upends current notions by exploring play s function as a tool in the subjugation of BIPOC As he shows the phenomenology of play is a power relationship Even in innocent play human beings subtly discipline each other to remain within unspoken rules Going further Trammell departs from mainstream theory to insist that torture can be play Approaching it as such reveals play s role in subjugating people in general and renders visible the long ignored experiences of BIPOC Such an inclusive definition of play becomes a form of intellectual reparation correcting the notion that play must give pleasure while also recasting play in a form that focuses on the deep painful and sometimes traumatic depths of living

Imagining Grace Kimberly Rae Connor, 2000 In this subtle and illuminating study Kimberly Rae Connor surveys examples of contemporary literature drama art and music that extend the literary tradition of African American slave narratives Revealing the powerful creative links between this tradition and liberation theology s search for grace she shows how these artworks profess a liberating theology of racial empathy and reconciliation even if not in traditionally Christian or sacred language From Frederick Douglass s autobiographical writings through Richard Wright s imaginative reconstruction of slavery to Ernest Gaines's Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman and the candescent novels of Toni Morrison slave narratives exhort the reader to step into the experience of the dispossessed Connor underscores the broad influence of the slave narrative by considering nonliterary as well as literary works including Glenn Ligon's introspective art Anna Deavere Smith's one woman performance pieces and Charlie Haden's politically engaged Liberation Music Orchestra Through these works readers listeners and viewers imagine grace on two levels as the liberation of the enslaved from oppression and as their own liberation from prejudice and willed innocence Calling to task a complacent white society that turns a blind eye to deep seated and continuing racial inequalities Imagining Grace shows how these creative endeavors embody the search for grace seeking to expose racism in all its guises and lay claim to political intellectual and spiritual freedom

The Intertextuality of Black American Spoken Word and African Griot Tradition Tammie Jenkins, 2025-01-15 Griots in Africa are considered among the first spoken word poets as they used this oral tradition to preserve their society's cultural artifacts and traditions These African oratory institutions underwent a transformative evolution during the Transatlantic Slave Trade and in the New World many displaced African born people continued the griot tradition expanding this practice to include their lived experiences and social realities hence modernizing spoken word poetry The Intertextuality of Black American Spoken Word and African Griot Tradition From the Motherland to America by Tammie Jenkins examines these relationships to show how spoken word poetry incorporates musical sampling to connect with historical events politics and

African diasporic discourses from emancipation through the present Using works by Meshell Ndegeocello and Ursula Rucker Jenkins analyzes how they reimagine history politics and the arts to create counternarratives that challenge larger accepted social narratives In doing so their approach demonstrates how Black American spoken word poets communicate and build reciprocal relationships with their listening audiences across intersections of race gender class and geography
