

CHAPTER 3 REVIEW*Atoms: The Building Blocks of MatterSECTION 3-1

SHORT ANSWER Answer the following questions in the space provided.

1. Why is Democritus's view of matter considered only an idea, while Dalton's view is considered a theory?

Democritus's idea of matter does not relate atoms to a measurable property, while Dalton's theory can be tested through quantitative experimentation.

2. Give an example of a chemical or physical process that illustrates the law of conservation of mass.

A glass of ice cubes will have the same mass when the ice has completely melted into water even though its volume will change.

3. State two principles from Dalton's atomic theory that have been revised as new information has become available.

Atoms are divisible into smaller particles called subatomic particles. A given element can have atoms with different masses, called isotopes.

4. The formation of water according to the equation shows that 2 molecules (made of 4 atoms) of hydrogen and 1 molecule (made of 2 atoms) of oxygen produce 2 molecules of water. The total mass of the product, water, is equal to the sum of the masses of each of the reactants, hydrogen and oxygen. What parts of Dalton's atomic theory are illustrated by this reaction? What other law does this reaction illustrate?

Atoms cannot be subdivided, created, or destroyed. Also, atoms of different elements combine in simple, whole-number ratios to form compounds. The reaction also illustrates the law of conservation of mass.
