The Circulatory System

The circulatory system is a network of blood vessels that transport blood throughout the body. It is responsible for delivering oxygen and nutrients to cells and removing waste products.

Heart

The heart is the central organ of the circulatory system. It pumps blood to the rest of the body. The heart is divided into four chambers: the right atrium, right ventricle, left atrium, and left ventricle.

Blood

Blood is the fluid that carries oxygen and nutrients to the body's cells. It is composed of red blood cells, white blood cells, and platelets. Blood is pumped from the heart to the rest of the body.

Blood Vessels

Blood vessels are the tubes that carry blood throughout the body. There are three types of blood vessels: arteries, veins, and capillaries. Arteries carry blood away from the heart, veins carry blood back to the heart, and capillaries are the smallest blood vessels where the exchange of oxygen and nutrients occurs.

Diagram of the Human Heart

The diagram shows the human heart with its four chambers and major blood vessels. The right side of the heart (right atrium and right ventricle) pumps deoxygenated blood to the lungs. The left side of the heart (left atrium and left ventricle) pumps oxygenated blood to the rest of the body.

Diagram of the Fish Heart

The diagram shows the fish heart, which is simpler than the human heart. It has two chambers: a single atrium and a single ventricle. Blood flows in a single loop from the heart to the gills and back to the heart.

Function of the Heart

The heart pumps blood to the rest of the body. It is the central organ of the circulatory system. The heart is divided into four chambers: the right atrium, right ventricle, left atrium, and left ventricle.

Function of Blood
