McCulloch,1983 Cyclone Country Chrystopher J. Spicer,2020-09-29 The storm has become a universal trope in the literature of crisis revelation and transformation It can function as a trope of place of apocalypse and epiphany of cultural mythos and story and of people and spirituality This book explores the connections between people place and environment through the image of cyclones within fiction and poetry from the Australian state of Queensland the northern coast of which is characterized by these devastating storms Analyzing a range of works including Alexis Wright s Carpentaria Patrick White s The Eye of the Storm and Vance Palmer s Cyclone it explains the cyclone in the Queensland literary imagination as an example of a cultural response to weather in a unique regional place It also situates the cyclones that appear in Queensland literature within the broader global context of literary cyclones Letters in Blood Gerald Arthur Winter,2007-10-02 Tom Larkin paid fifty grand for his brilliant red casket months before they planned a sailor s funeral for him that night His coffin cruised at 120 mph with its dash lit like a jet s cockpit where the most important reading to Larkin glowed on his Porsche s digital clock 4 00 AM Perhaps it was his darkest moment before dawn but he had other plans He drove recklessly hydroplaning northbound on Manhattan s flooded FDR Drive through sheets of pouring rain The drive home took an hour but with minimal visibility in a torrential downpour the flooded Harlem River Drive leading to the George Washington Bridge concealed potholes rattling the fine suspension of his German made wet dream Larkin s greater problem DWI was a given they had counted on Still they drugged his last sour mash at Rao s just to up the prelude s tempo to an evening dirge With the bad weather his inebriation and hallucinations from a subtle drug taking hold of his senses the distance between Larkin and home lengthened as time became his enemy Vera his wife told him she d kill him the next time he stumbled in after daybreak It was no idle threat He knew she could kill in a crime of passion especially him Death lurked at the start and finish of his race homeward but with two strikes against him only he could fathom the third his bent to self destruction If all went as planned Harbor Police would find Tom Larkin dead behind the wheel after hitting the muddy bottom of the East River or any other river They just wanted him gone stateside or overseas no matter what Larkin still felt sharp an hour after downing his third double Jack Daniels In his mind past present and future were clear Remembering his hat size Social Security number and the measurements of a dozen bimbos was no problem He could read his driver s license number from three paces backward upside down with either eye or both without glasses He d been sharp for two hours before he started driving but an hour after his last belt the one first kicked in with the drugs and compounded his usual buzz Seeing Vera as more dangerous than the road he sped recklessly despite the hazardous conditions He had no idea anyone wanted to kill him for anything other than his flagrant infidelities To his right the black depths of the East River was a fatal attraction He could be a loser on two counts but there was a third alternative the loser s hat trick call strike three without a swat to stay alive His own worst enemy he knew they might find him dead before dawn on all three counts Bastards he grumbled cursing his so called buddies who let him get behind the wheel after he had been pumping drinks for hours Their names escaped him So much for clarity Sharp as a rose thorn he wondered My ass Where were those faceless nonentities They were friends enough to buy his fourth drink in a dingy saloon yet they had turned their backs when he squinted to read the address on his parking stub Had they callously watched him stumbling to his Porsche trying to get the himself home So much for twenty twenty fucking vision he thought Vera will kill me if I m not out of here What time you got Pal I can t read my damn watch His mind and car sped out of control at a mile a minute The East River beckoned Who could ever see clearly in a dim twilight between happy hour and an untimely death He shrugged and imagined seeing his own hands clutching the steering wheel but saw no flesh only bone In the rearview mirror he caught the malicious grins of three Mexican capungos bandits who d kill as soon as spit
