Michael Bollig, Olaf Bubenzer, 2009-06-12 Landscape studies provide a crucial perspective into the interaction between humans and their environment shedding insight on social cultural and economic topics The research explores both the way that natural processes have affected the development of culture and society as well as the ways that natural landscapes themselves are the product of historical and cultural processes Most previous studies of the landscape selectively focused on either the natural sciences or the social sciences but the research presented in African Landscapes bridges that gap This work is unique in its interdisciplinary scope Over the past twelve years the contributors to this volume have participated in the collaborative research center ACACIA Arid Climate Adaptation and Cultural Innovation in Africa which deals with the relationship between cultural processes and ecological dynamics in Africa's arid areas. The case studies presented here come from mainly Sahara Sahel and southwestern Africa and are all linked to broader discussions on the concept of landscape and themes of cultural anthropological geographical botanical sociological and archaeological interest. The contributions in this work are enhanced by full color photographs that put the discussion in context visually.

The Soils of Chile Manuel Casanova, Osvaldo Salazar, Oscar Seguel, Walter Luzio, 2013-01-18 This book is intended for students and soil scientists who want to know about the state of the art in soil sciences in Chile. The book merges a comprehensive bibliographical review of the soil surveys carried out throughout the length and breadth of Chilean territory during the past 40 years and more recent information obtained by the authors in a number of field studies. As its starting point, the book presents a general overview of important features related to Chilean soils such as geology and geomorphology, climate, land use and vegetation. In this long and narrow country, different soil formation factors and processes have resulted in a broad variety of soil bodies from the extremely arid Atacama desert to the Patagonian and Antarctic zones. This book provides a description and classification mainly Soil Taxonomy of the most important soil types. Particularly important are soils derived from volcanic materials which cover extensive areas of Chile. The book also deals with soil management topics in relation to the chemical, physical and biological properties of Chilean soils and it includes a number of examples from throughout the country. Finally, the book shows how man has induced severe soil degradation problems in Chile such as erosive soil degradation, non-erosive soil degradation and land desertification.

Appropriate Technology, 2001

The Future of Drylands Cathy Lee, Thomas Schaaf, 2008-10-29 Drylands have been cradles to some of the world's greatest civilizations and contemporary dryland communities feature rich and unique cultures. Dryland ecosystems support a surprising amount of biodiversity. Desertification, however, is a significant land degradation problem in the arid, semi-arid and dry sub-humid regions of the world. Deterioration of soil and plant cover has adversely affected 70% of the world's drylands as a result of extended droughts as well as mismanagement of range and cultivated lands. The situation is likely to worsen with high population growth rates and accompanying land use conflicts. The contributions to The Future of Drylands, an international scientific conference held under the leadership of UNESCO, address these issues and offer practical solutions for combating desertification along with conserving and sustainably managing dryland ecosystems. Major themes include the conservation of dryland biological and cultural diversity and the human dryland interface. This volume documents how our improved understanding of drylands provides insight into the health and future prospects of these precious ecosystems that should help ensure that dryland communities enjoy a sustainable future.
