The Web as History Niels Brügger, Ralph Schroeder, 2017-03-06 The World Wide Web has now been in use for more than 20 years From early browsers to today's principal source of information entertainment and much else the Web is an integral part of our daily lives to the extent that some people believe if it's not online it doesn't exist While this statement is not entirely true it is becoming increasingly accurate and reflects the Web's role as an indispensable treasure trove It is curious therefore that historians and social scientists have thus far made little use of the Web to investigate historical patterns of culture and society despite making good use of letters novels newspapers radio and television programmes and other pre digital artefacts This volume argues that now is the time to ask what we have learnt from the Web so far The 12 chapters explore this topic from a number of interdisciplinary angles through histories of national web spaces and case studies of different government and media domains as well as an introduction that provides an overview of this exciting new area of research

Web History Niels Brügger, 2010 This is the first edited volume to put the emerging field of web history on the agenda of internet research Sixteen original chapters investigate how the use of the web has developed in the realm of web culture at large as well as how the organization of web industries and old media institutions on the web have changed A number of fundamental theoretical and methodological questions related to doing web history are also examined The collection aims to explore some of the possible ways of approaching the web of the past based on the assumption that the past is not only important for historical purposes but because it must be taken into consideration in order to fully understand the web of the present and the web of the future The book includes a foreword by Charles Ess and contributions from Kirsten Foot Steven Schneider Alexander Halavais Ken Hillis and more Library and Information Science Michael F.
