Heritage Film Audiences Claire Monk,2011-06-30 The concept of heritage cinema is now firmly established as an influential as well as much debated and contested critical framework for the discussion of period or historical representation in film most prominently with reference to British heritage and post heritage film successes since the 1980s but also to comparable examples from Europe North America and beyond These successes have ranged from Merchant Ivory s A Room with a View Maurice Howards End and The Remains of the Day via Jane Austen adaptations such as Ang Lee s Sense and Sensibility to post heritage adaptations such as Sally Potter s Orlando Yet the very idea of the heritage film has rested on untested assumptions about its audiences This book breaks significant new ground in the scholarship on contemporary period films and makes a distinctive new contribution to the growing field of film audience studies by presenting the first empirically based study of the audiences for quality period films Monk engages directly with two highly contrasting sections of these audiences surveyed in the UK in the late 1990s to explore their identities their wider patterns of film taste and above all their attitudes and pleasures in relation to the period films they enjoy and on issues central to debates around the heritage film literary adaptation and cultural value with illuminating and unpredicted results Capturing the Senses Giacomo

Landeschi,Eleanor Betts,2023-06-12 This open access book surveys how digital technology can contribute effectively to improving our understanding of the past through a sensory engagement based on the evidence of material culture In particular it encourages specialists to consider senses and human agency as important factors in studying ancient space while recognising the role played by digital tools in enhancing a human centred form of analysis Significant advances in archaeological computing digital methods and sensory approaches have led archaeologists to rethink strategies and methods for creating narratives of the past Recent progress in data visualisation and implementation as well as other nascent digital sensory methods means that it is now easier to explore and experience ancient space from a multiscale perspective from the individual body or single building to the wider landscape The chapters in Capturing the Senses Digital Methods for Sensory Archaeologies present innovative methods for representing an embodied experience of ancient space simulating but not recreating ancient behaviours and social interaction Chapters cover topics including the potentials and pitfalls of visualising recreating and re enacting experiencing the senses in Virtual Reality environments and also digital reconstructions and auralisations of ancient spaces to study sound sensory perception Overall the book demonstrates that multisensory approaches can give a new perspective on how ancient spaces were intended to be used by inhabitants to fulfil a series of purposes including conveying messages and regulating movement This is an open access book
