

The background of the entire image is a photograph of a dirt path that curves through a wooded area. The path is light brown and appears to be made of dry earth or gravel. On either side of the path, there are various trees and bushes. Some trees have bare, dark branches, while others have green leaves. The lighting suggests a bright day, with sunlight filtering through the canopy. The overall scene is a natural, outdoor setting.

Ascent Man Mathilde Blind:

The Ascent of Man Mathilde Blind, 2015-07-16 The Ascent of Man Mathilde Blind, 1899 Mathilde Blind: Selected Fin-de-Siècle Poetry and Prose James Diedrick, 2021-11-12 Mathilde Blind's contributions to the New Woman and Decadent movements in the 1880s and 1890s placed her at the centre of fin de siècle literary culture. She rose to prominence in the early 1870s both as an expert on and proponent of the poetry of Percy Bysshe Shelley and as one of the few women writers published in the Dark Blue 1871-73, an influential journal that featured the work of Britain's leading Pre-Raphaelites and aesthetes. By the late 1880s she had established close associations with key figures of England's emergent Decadent communities from Vernon Lee and Rosamund Marriott Watson to Oscar Wilde and Arthur Symonds. When her Dramas in Miniature appeared in 1891, she was fusing aestheticism and Decadence so distinctively in her poetry that Symonds evoked Charles Baudelaire in calling the dramatic monologues in the volume 'flowers of evil'. Her career thus highlights the connections between mid-Victorian aestheticism and late-century Decadence. It also serves as an important corrective to the male-focused narratives that long dominated accounts of these movements. In addition, because Blind was born in Germany of Jewish parents and part of a community of exiled European radicals, her poetry and prose alike are characterized by a transnational cosmopolitan outlook that ranges across national borders and consistently engages with Continental writers and ideas. This new edition for the first time brings together the three major volumes of poetry Blind published between 1889 and 1895 alongside a critical introduction and explanatory notes. Because she was also an active reviewer and essayist throughout her career, it includes a selection of her reviews as well as her essay 'Shelley's View of Nature Contrasted with Darwin's', which serves as an important supplement to her 1889 volume The Ascent of Man. The edition also features a selection of critical responses to Blind's writing by leading late-Victorian poets and critics.

Victorian Women Poets Alison Chapman, 2003 Engaging critically with the political and aesthetic agenda behind the project of recovery, this collection of specially commissioned essays offers revisionary readings of both established canonical Victorian women poets and re-discovered writers.

History of a World of Immortals without a God
Anonymous, 2022-08-21 In the groundbreaking text History of a World of Immortals without a God, the anonymous author navigates the complexities of a universe where immortality exists independently of divine influence. This philosophical narrative intricately weaves together themes of existence, morality, and human autonomy, presenting a nuanced exploration of immortality devoid of the traditional religious scaffold. The author's distinctive literary style combines allegory with reflective prose, inviting readers to ponder the implications of eternal life within a secular context, challenging the very foundations of human purpose and societal constructs. The choice to remain anonymous speaks volumes about the author's intentional alignment with the themes of anonymity and universality presented within the book. It suggests a desire to transcend individual identity, allowing the ideas to resonate on a broader cultural and philosophical level. Moreover, the author's background in existential philosophy and their engagement with contemporary debates about life death and the metaphysical may have significantly influenced the creation of this profound work I highly recommend History of a World of Immortals without a God to anyone fascinated by philosophical inquiries and speculative literature This text not only stimulates intellectual discourse but also encourages introspection about the very nature of existence making it an essential read for scholars philosophy enthusiasts and general readers alike

The Routledge Research Companion to Nineteenth-Century British Literature and Science John Holmes, Sharon Ruston, 2017-05-18 Tracing the continuities and trends in the complex relationship between literature and science in the long nineteenth century this companion provides scholars with a comprehensive authoritative and up to date foundation for research in this field In intellectual material and social terms the transformation undergone by Western culture over the period was unprecedented Many of these changes were grounded in the growth of science Yet science was not a cultural monolith then any more than it is now and its development was shaped by competing world views To cover the full range of literary engagements with science in the nineteenth century this companion consists of twenty seven chapters by experts in the field which explore crucial social and intellectual contexts for the interactions between literature and science how science affected different genres of writing and the importance of individual scientific disciplines and concepts within literary culture Each chapter has its own extensive bibliography The volume as a whole is rounded out with a synoptic introduction by the editors and an afterword by the eminent historian of nineteenth century science Bernard Lightman
