Background: The purpose of this study was to determine the prevalence of self-reported depression and anxiety among a sample of young adults in the United States. Methods: Data were obtained from the 2007 National Survey of Adolescent Health, a nationally representative survey of adolescents and young adults. Results: The prevalence of self-reported depression was 12.5% and the prevalence of self-reported anxiety was 15.8%. Conclusions: The prevalence of self-reported depression and anxiety among young adults in the United States is high. Further research is needed to determine the causes of these conditions and to develop effective interventions.
